TWO CALL AT HEADQUARTERS IN "SHORTAGE CASE"

John J. McCarthy, cashier, and Francis J. O'Connell, teller, walked into police headquarters today, an hour after Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Silvermann had asked for warrants for their arrest in connection with the shortage of funds in the City Collector's office, where they are employed. They were accompanied by their counsel, John F. McDonald. The three went into conference with police officials. The complain will be presented in Municipal Court Monday.

COAST GUARD'S BODY RECOVERED

New London, Ct., June 12 (A.P.).—The body of William Patterson, 18, coast guardsman, drowned May 5, was recovered today. Patterson fell into the Thames while attempting a hand-to-hand passage over a tow rope from the seized rum rummer Admiral Schley to the patrol boat 189.

When Ford Gets Drastic

By Arthur Brisbane

YESTERDAY young lawyers, getting with their degrees the right to bully witnesses, were solemnly warned that the law is full of pitfalls. It is, especially for those that are not lawyers. Voltaire tells the story of the cat employed to watch the cheese, that mice might not get it.

The mice didn't get it, but the cat did. When the owner returned there wasn't any cheese. That cat represents a certain kind of justice.

COUNT CHANDON-MOET and Mr. Henri Moet, whose names you may have seen on Moet and Chandon champagne labels, tell their friends "we could get champagne anywhere in the United States by paying enough." That is true.

THESE WINE GENTLEMEN, amused by New York's champagne-bathtub parties, say they don't care whether champagne is used for baths or drinking it. Frenchmen that manufacture champagne are too wise to drink it.

They know that in sparkling wine fermentation has been arrested. It continues inside you, when swallowed, hence the champagne headaches.

ARREST OF 2 SOUGHT AS 'TOOL' CONFESSES IN HUB FUND JUGGLE

Warrants for the arrest of Cashier John J. McCarthy and Teller Francis J. O'Connell of the city collector's department were asked for today at the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, police headquarters, by Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, in connection with the shortage in that department.

As the courts were closed for the week-end, arrangements were made for Silverman to return on Monday when two inspectors will accompany him to Municipal Court to formally seek the warrants, according to police.

Silverman told the story of the investigation to Captain Gustaf Gustafson, citing larceny and conspiracy as the charges he wished to make and naming the amount involved as $6,569.47, it was stated. From April 1924, to May, 1926, the alleged acts occurrred, he said.

McCarthy appeared dramatically at City Hall a few moments after Silverman returned. He was accompanied by two lawyers, and with them he walked casually into the city collector's office, where he came face to face with O'Connell.

O'Connell made a full confession in a three-hour period of questioning

DRAPER ROMANCE ON ROCKS; HE FILES SUIT

State Senator Eben S. Draper, son of the late Governor Draper, filed suit for divorce in Paris today and recorded an agreement that his wife shall have custody of the children and alimony from him of about $6,000 yearly.

His wife, descendant of a prominent Connecticut family, is not defending the suit. Both Draper and his wife are in Paris, she having gone there early this year with the children.

The divorce "agreement" filed by Draper in connection with his application specifies the alimony he is willing to pay as 200,000 francs, which at the present rate of exchange, is nearly $5,900, but which, in the course of years, may increase to several times that amount.

Rumors of a rift in the wartime romance of the State Senator and his wife were current when he sailed for France early last month, but

MAN AND GIRL KILLED IN NEW YORK HOLDUPS

New York, June 12 (I.N.S.)—In a fruitless attempt to capture the $1,400 payroll of the Sunglo Company, Inc., wholesale grocers and canners in West Thirteenth street, today, four armed thugs killed the cashier and a girl stenographer and seriously wounded another girl.

The slain cashier was Samuel Winterbottom and the stenographer was Josephine di Fiori, twenty years old. The other victim is Elizabeth Schumacher.

In another holdup thugs blew open two safes in the offices of the Rural New Yorker, a farm weekly, and escaped with $30,000 in cash and negotiable securities. Henry McCormick, watchman, said the thugs bound him to a chair but did not gag him, so he knocked a receiver from a telephone and called the police. In their flight the thugs left a third and larger safe unopened.

Five thugs held up Nathan Wasserman, a Brooklyn plumbing contractor, and his bookkeeper, Irving Solomon, and took a $1,000 payroll and $2,500 worth of jewelry, after beating both men with the butts of revolvers.

IRISH REPUBLIC DROPS DE VALERA AS LEADER

Dublin, June 12 (A.P.).—Art O'Connor, former Sin Fein Minister of Agriculture, but who turned Republican in the Irish election in 1922, was introduced at a meeting here as "President of the Irish Republic."

Count Plunkett who presided, said that owing to the defection of Eamon DeValera the Republicans were simply forced to do without him and go their own way.

STAY IS WON BY BANK KILLER

Celestini Medeiros, convicted slayer, lost today on a motion for a new trial but by bringing the motion just before the hour set for sentencing him his counsel succeeded in postponing pronouncement of his fate.

Motion for a new trial was based on the claim that Medeiros was not given a chance to address the jury in Dedham Superior Court.

FAST HUB TRAIN WRECKS ROAD

Worcester, June 12 (A.P.).—The left driving rod broke on the Twentieth Cetury Limited, Boston to Chicago, a quarter of a mile east of the Westboro depot today and before the train was stopped it had passed Westboro depot, one end of the broken rod splintering the platform in its passage, and digging great holes inthe ballasted road bed and scattering the ballast rocks in some places 100 yards.

It also damaged a concrete section of the freight loading platform near the station.

Traffic was delayed on the main line until another locomotive could arrive. The chief damage was to the locomotive.

DR. HARVEY CUSHING'S SON DIES IN CRASH OF AUTO WITH 3 OTHERS

Two Yale students, one of them the son of a famous Boston brain specialist, and their two women companions crashed to their death in a speeding automobile today at Guilford, Ct., their car leaping from the road and into a big elm tree at a curve on the outskirts of the town.

The dead are:

William H. Cushing of Brookline, Yale baseball player and son of Dr. Harvey Cushing of Harvard Medical School.

George M. Kopperl of Galveston, Tex., driver of the car.

Mrs. Edwin R. Reeser, No. 4 Wall street, New Haven.

Miss Dorothy Kiernan, No. 186 Greene street, New Haven.

Young Cushing was in the junior class at college. His parents reside at No. 305 Walnut street, Brookline, and his father, Dr. Cushing, besides being a Harvard professor, is surgeon-in-chief of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

BOOTLEGGER FLEES GIN PROBE IN HIGH SCHOOL

A bootlegger alleged to have sold liquor to students, disappeared suddenly today from his Cambridge haunts, while three investigations into charges that synthetic gin is dispensed in cloak rooms and corridors of Cambridge High and Latin School got under way.

A fourth investigation by the school committee was promised if the charges are substantiated.

Three probes by the Cambridge vice squad, Mayor Quinn and School Superintendent Michael E. Fitzgerald were launched on the heels of the charges. At the same time School Committeeman Charles F. Hurley announced he would demand drastic action by the school committee Monday if charges are verified.

PARENTS MAKING RUM.

Mayor Quinn issued a statement in which he said he would go to the bottom of the affair. The vice squad announced its evidence would be turned over to the district attorney while Superintendent Fitzgerald summoned various masters before him.

While Superintendent Fitzgerald protested he was doing everything in his power to prevent drinking [illegible] the school he disclaimed responsibility for the attitude of students. He said:

"When children tell you that their own parents are manufacturing booze at home, it is safe to infer the children have a good start in acquiring the drinking habit."

The expose followed a joy ride of a group of boy and girl students to Nantasket after the recent junior "prom."

Committeeman Hurley intimated

AUTO HITS TREE ON CURVE

Mrs. Reeser and the two men were killed instantly when the high-powered roadster, lent to Kopperl for the night, was virtually demolished against the tree.

Miss Kiernan was breathing when persons living nearby, awakened by the terrific crash, rushed to aid the injured. She died, however, a few minutes after being taken to the Guilford Sanatorium by Dr. G. Franklin Anderson. Her death came before she could give an account of the accident, but not before she whispered her name to the doctor.

The others were identified by cards in their clothing.

The automobile, bearing New York markers, belonged to C. F. Sheldon of New York City, a freshman at Yale, who said today he had the car in New Haven so that he could take his things home when the college term ended this week.

He said that he had let Kopperl, his roommate, take the car last night and that Kopperl, Cushing and the women had gone to a dance in Woodlawn, which is west of this town.

The party was hurrying home about 2 o'clock when they crashed into the tree on the Post Road. The heavy car was turned on its side by the impact and badly damaged.

Kopperl and Mrs. Reeser were crushed, while Cushing and Miss Kiernan were hurled clear out of the rumble seat which they occupied.

Cushing, who made his major letter last year as a Blue outfielder, was on the squad this season, but had not played in a game which would give him a letter this year. He was on the hockey squad and was a member of Chi Psi fraternity.

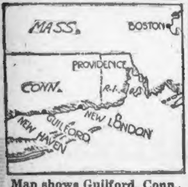
Kopperl played on the freshman football team. His mother, who is in New York, was notified of the accident and was expected here today. He has a brother in Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The machine was traveling at a high rate of speed at the time of the accident. An S curve in the road is believed to have been the cause of the tragedy. It is thought that Kopperl, who was driving, failed to see this curve and the car left the highway.

3 Dead, 2 Hurt, as Auto Crashes Into Tree

Lock Haven, Pa., June 12 (A.P.).—Two men were killed outright and one died from injuries three hours later in a hospital here when their motorcar struck a tree at Snydertown today. Two others in the party were injured. All were residents of Towanda, Pa. The dead are: F. A. Green, F. A. Kline and Joseph Mingoes. The injured are Isham Cox and Allan F. Wooster.

Where Four Died



Map shows Guilford, Conn., where an automobile containing two Yale students, W. H. Cushing, son of a famous Brookline physician, and G. M. Kopperl of Texas, and two women struck a tree. All four occupants of the car were killed.

HERE'S SADDEST GIRL! SHE LOST $1,000 ROLL

WHO'S GOT MOTHER'S SAVINGS?
While a lucky finder gloats over the $1,000 dropped by Miss Florence Croan of Adams street, Roxbury, in a down-town department store, the girl is nearly heartbroken over the loss of the money, which constituted her mother's life savings. She was on her way to the bank when she lost the roll from her hand bag.

SMITH GREETS PRINCE; SAYS 'HE'S ALL RIGHT!'

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—"He's all right, that fellow," was Governor Smith's characterization of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden after they met today at City Hall.

Surrounded by his military staff, the Governor awaited the arrival of the Crown Prince in the Governor's room. Down Broadway rushed the royal party in automobiles headed by a military guard. A bugler sounded "colors" as the Crown Prince stepped from his limousine.

"How are you?" the Governor asked.

"I'm fine. I've had a splendid time here," said the Crown Prince. "This is a wonderful city."

They spent a quarter-hour chatting pleasantly.

WAR VET OF 80 WEDS NO. 3 HIS WIFE PICKED

George Herbert Merrill, eighty-year-old Civil War drummer of Somerville, is married a third time. His wife is the former Mrs. Annie E. Reid, fifty-two, of No. 16 Clinton avenue, Brockton.

Return of their marriage license to Somerville City Hall revealed the marriage, which took place quietly at Merrill's home, No. 3 Wesley park, on June 8 with Rev. Thomas Bruce Bitler of the Prospect Hill Congregational Church officiating.

When Merrill obtained his license several weeks ago he said that his second wife on her death bed picked out his third for him, just as his first wife had picked out his second.

members of the families of both refused to comment other than saying it was "sad, if true."

Senator Draper lives in a town house in Berkeley street during the time the Legislature is in session and has a magnificent estate known as "The Ledges" at Hopedale, where the Draper millions are invested in prosperous manufacturing properties.

The romance of the couple began where it has ended, in France, during the war, where Draper was a Yankee Division lieutenant and his wife was one of the society debutantes who went overseas in Red Cross work.

LYNN GIRL-WIFE NEAR DEATH FROM POISONING

Mrs. Mary Johnson, 17, of Smith street, Lynn, was found unconscious in front of the Lynn Hospital by a nurse today, after she had attempted suicide, the hospital authorities say, by swallowing poison. Her father, Thomas E. Lehan, denied she had attempted to take her life, but at the hospital she was listed as a "suicidal attempt" patient, and her name placed on the danger list. She is the wife of Herbert Johnson.

prospective increases in salaries of executives might be cancelled, in the event charges are verified. He said:

"Cambridge pays its school executives very high salaries. If they can't cope with such a situation it is time for the committee to wake up and make such changes as are necessary in the personnel of the School Department."

Police Sergeant Presho said that as long as two years ago the police were called to investigate reports of liquor selling at the school, but no arrests were made.

The synthetic gin is bootlegged by five boy students, it is alleged, who work on a commission basis. As a rule orders are taken in advance, but if any student desires liquor at once it can be obtained from the hip-pocket of some of the runners.

HINT FEDERAL PROBE.

The charges assert that upon occasions students have entered the classrooms under the influence of liquor. Federal authorities will join the city in the inquiry and it is possible arrests and court action will follow.

The Nantasket auto party was discussed by the Cambridge School Superintendent of Schools Fitzgerald. His attention was called to the party by Principal Leslie W. Cleveland, to whom rumors came and who investigated these and called the pupils involved before him. It was stated none of the girls drank any liquor. The four seniors in the party will be permitted to receive their diplomas, one boy has been withdrawn from the school by his father and one girl has not yet returned.

The youths arrested were John Young, 19, of No. 23 Concord avenue, Cambridge, and William Hickey, 18, of No. 48 Linnaen street, Cambridge.

DENY GIRLS DRANK.

Others in the party were Miss Bernice V. (Bunny) Potter, of No. 142 Lake View avenue, Cambridge; Miss Helen V. (Patsy) Dunbar, of No. 460 Putnam avenue, Cambridge; Robert H. Daly, of No. 8 Hurlbut street, Cambridge, and John Lovejoy, of No. 69 Walker street, Cambridge.

They admit they were on the party, and insist that none of the girls partook of any liquor, though they conceded liquor was present in the machines and when they entered the Allerton bungalow, where the police found them after the two arrested youths started scuffling. The party came to light when one of the boy pupils boasted at the school the next day.

M'ALMAN STAYS HEAD OF HUB AUTO DEALERS

John H. McAlman, president of J. H. MacAlman, Stearns Knight dealer, was re-elected president of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association for the 20th consecutive year at the annual meeting. J. W. Bowman of the Marmon Boston Co. was elected vice-president, Chester I. Campbell, secretary, and F. H. Hinchcliffe of the Hinchcliffe Motor Co. treasurer. Chester I. Campbell enters on his 25th year as secretary of the association.

The following board of directors was elected: J. H. MacAlman, J. W. Bowman, F. H. Hinchcliffe, C. P. Rockwell, Charles E. Fay, A. L. Danforth, George B. Kimball, Otto A. Lawton, W. C. Sills and John H. Johnson.

The date of the 25th annual Boston Automobile Show was set for March 5 to 12. It will be the silver jubilee of the Boston Show.

He is alleged to have called himself a "tool" of McCarthy. He had completed his story when McCarthy walked in.

The lawyers accompanying the accused cashier were Alexander Whiteside, who was corporation counsel for the city during the Peters administration, known as a friend of the present administration, and Timothy Driscoll of Roxbury, a former State representative.

Present at the conference at City Hall were Collector William M. McMorrow, Corporation Counsel Frank Deland, Assistant Silverman, City Auditor Rupert S. Carven and the stenographer.

VISIT OF ARCHBISHOP OF PARIS DEFERRED

Worcester, June 12 (A.P.).—Cardinal Dubois, archbishop of Paris and primate of France, who arrived in the United States last night on a special mission for the French government and to attend the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, will be unable to come to this city tomorrow night. In his stead will come Archbishop Leynaud of Algiers. The cardinal and his party will come later.

Archbishop Leynaud will officiate at the commencement exercises of Assumption College at 10 a. m. Monday. He will be accompanied to Worcester by Rev. Clodoald Serierx, A. A., president of the college.

POPE MESSAGE ON N. Y. RADIO

Rome, June 12 (A.P.).—The Pope's message to the Chicago Eucharistic Congress will be read by Cardinal Bonzano, Papal legate, from the radio station of the Paulist Fathers in New York, according to the newspapers.

It is added that the Pope has no intention of broadcasting the message directly from the Vatican.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—At the radio station of the Paulist Fathers here it was said today instructions had not been received as yet for broadcasting the Papal message to the Chicago Eucharistic Congress by Cardinal Bonzano.

"We have received no intimation that the broadcasting of the message from this station was contemplated," said the director of the station when informed of reports to that effect.

NIGHT CLUB LEASES BIG NARRAGANSETT CASINO

Providence, June 12 (A.P.).—The Casino at Narragansett Pier has been leased for ten years to the Lido Club, a well-known night club of New York and Miami, Fla. At the same time Maurice F. Ready of Worcester, through whose office the transaction was made, announced that Shore Acres at the Pier, the estate formerly owned by Mrs. John J. Hanan, has been sold to George P. Dempsey of Boston, who has occupied the house for some seasons past.

MILLIONAIRES RAISED FUND FOR PEPPER

Only Those "Good for $1,000 Each Who Wouldn't Miss It" Were Chosen

Washington, June 12 (I.N.S.).—A carefully selected committee of millionaires raised the campaign fund of Senator George Wharton Pepper in Pennsylvania's recent senatorial primary, Robert Glindenning, State chairman of the Pepper finance committee, told the Senate "slush fund" committee today.

"Everybody I thought as good for $1,000 without missing it I put on the committee," Glendenning, a Philadelphia banker, said.

"How many did you get?" asked Senator Reed (D.) of Missouri. W. Bok, Sidney T. Brock, banker; Charles J. Webb, woolen manufacturer; Charleston Yarnell, capitalist; J. Leonard Replogle, steel king; Edward B. Robinette and E. W. Clark, bankers; W. S. Ellis, capitalist, and John H. Browning, manufacturer. Bok gave $2,000 to the fund, witness added, but asked later that his name be taken off the committee.

Glindenning raised between $40,000 "Thirty or forty: I had no limit in my mind."

The committee included Edward and $50,000 by December 27, 1925, he said.

NEW WITNESSES CALLED.

The committee announced subpoenas had been issued for Vernon Taylor of Indiana County, Pa., and Thomas F. Watson of Philadelphia. Taylor was called to tell about Pepper expenditures in Western Pennsylvania, while Watson was chairman of the Republican Citizens' Committee of Philadelphia and State treasurer of the Vare campaign.

T. Henry Walnut, chairman of Pinchot's Philadelphia committee, told of conducting the Governor's campaign in that city. He said the disbursements were $24,171.59 for the headquarters, hire of speakers and watchers at the polls.

Walnut said Pinchot had only 408 paid watchers in Philadelphia, as compared to the 9,000 employed by the Pepper forces.

"We had 1,600 watchers' certificates issued, but we only paid 408," said Walnut.

"WET" SHERIFF GIVEN JAIL AND $2,500 FINE

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.)—The red brick jail of Dupage County at Wheaton, Ill., where Red Grange's had used to swing a bundle of keys, opened its doors today to Sheriff Peter Hoffman of Cook County.

He was convicted, with his warden, Wesley Westerbrook, of permitting too many liberties to two beer runners serving Federal terms in the Cook County jail. He was sentenced to thirty days in jail and fined $2,500.

Boston Man Buys $4,000,000 Road for $30,800

NO TRAINS EVER RAN OVER IT

Marks Angel Highest Bidder for Hampden Railroad, a Part of Mellen System

The $4,000,000 Hampden Railroad, stretching from East Springfield to Bondsville, a distance of about fifteen miles, and part of the huge merger of New England railroad systems formed by the late Charles S. Mellen in 1912, was today sold for junk to Marks Angel of Boston for $30,800.

The purchase was made from William E. Gilbert of Springfield, receiver for the luckless enterprise, by Angel's attorney, Elijah Adlow. Angel was the highest bidder for the road over which no train was ever run.

RIGHT OF WAY.

The property includes the right of way, a station built at East Springfield, combination stations and feight houses at Ludlow, Three Rivers and Thorndike, bridges over the Chicopee river and elsewhere, a water station and a miscellaneous collection of rusty rails, frogs, switches, ties, girders and switch stands.

The specific purpose of the road was to give the Boston & Maine Railroad and the New Haven road a direct line from Boston through Springfield to New York. It was to have been leased to the Boston & Maine, which Mellen had already merged with the New Haven, for ninety-nine years. After the Boston & Maine directors had voted in 1912 to buy or lease the road on terms approved by the Massachusetts Railroad Commission, the Legislature stepped in and halted the proceedings.

PROTESTED LEASE.

At the time, minority stockholders of the Boston & Maine protested the lease claiming the cost of building the Hampden line had been at the exorbitant rate of $250,000 a mile.

The Hampden Railroad Corporation was formed in 1910 with an authorized capital of $1,400,000. The officers were E. L. Gillett of Westfield, president; J. A. Skinner of Holyoke, vice-president; A. W. Eaton of Pittsfield, treasurer, and A. D. Robinson, clerk. Construction was largely financed by banks.

The corporation has outstanding $2,000,000 of 6 per cent. notes, which matured January 1, 1914, and which were extended three times up to 1916 and again indefinitely.

'FRECKLES' BARES FILM ROMANCE

Elevator Operator Sees Wesley Barry's Face and Secret of Wedding Plans Is Out

Newark, N. J., June 12 (A.P.).—A freckle-faced Penrod and a plump chestnut-haired young vaudeville actress today counted the hours until their marriage on Monday night.

The groom-to-be is 18-year-old Wesley Barry, whose freckles became matters of public attention when he appeared in Booth Tarkington's screen play, Penrod. The girl of his choice is Miss Julia Wood, 23, who spent a year in vaudeville, but now lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wood, No. 23 Johnson avenue.

The wedding will take place at the bride's home and the pair will leave for Hollywood immediately thereafter.

The consent of Wesley's mother, Mrs. Martha Barry Eyre of Los Angeles, was required before the license could be obtained. It was given by letter.

But for a keen-eyed elevator operator their trip to city hall would have gone unnoticed.

License clerks passed the young star by with routine courtesy and attention—but the operator saw the freckles, recognized them, and the story was out.

FED POISON TO CHELSEA GIRL

Chelsea police are investigating the poisoning of Dorothy Russo, 16, of No. 73 Division street, Chelsea, who was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital in a delirious condition two hours after she had sipped a quantity of green fluid from a glass handed to her by an unidentified young man.

The girl told the police that she was suffering with a headache and accepted the drink of medicine. Some time later she was overcome with a dizzy spell and was assisted to her home. There she was seized with a fit and began to tear her clothing.

The girl declared she was unable to remember the name of the man who gave her the drink, though she had known him for several weeks.

HIS "MEDICINE" POISONS HER

Miss Dorothy Russo, 18, of Chelsea, told police she sipped a "green liquid" a man friend gave her to relieve a headache. She collapsed soon afterward and was removed to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital, where she was revived after being delirious for some time. Police are hunting the man.

EDNA WILL WED AT 62

"ETERNAL YOUTH"
Edna Wallace Hopper sails for France to marry Duc de La Chartre, both seeking "eternal youth."

YOUTH STILL FAVORS HER
Her romance with "young" duke began last Summer, when both discovered they were convinced that eternal youth is within the grasp of generations still living, Edna said on sailing. Edna is 62 and the Duc is 70 years old.

Pigeon Fights Off Hawks, Reaches Home Dying

Worcester, June 12 (A.P.).—In a dying condition with almost featherless wings and its body frightfully lacerated, Midland Hen, a prize-winning racing pigeon owned by Stephen Raskett of this city, fluttered home last night after being six days making the 300-mile trip from Rochester, N. Y., as a result of vicious attacks by hawks in the Berkshire hills.

The bird, with 175 others, was released Sunday morning in the Commonwealth Racing Pigeon Club's 300-mile contest. Less than one-half of these birds survived the trip.

TOOTHAKER BOY TO TAKE STAND

Eighteen-year-old Stanley B Toothaker of No. 5 Bartlett Terrace, Roxbury, one of the three youths on trial in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court charged with the first degree murder of Policeman Frank J. Comeau in Dorchester last March, will take the witness stand in his own defense.

The trial will be continued Monday.

The boy, who has been termed a mental deficient by his counsel, Attorney Bernard J. Killion, will tell the jury how he became associated with the other defendants, Albert H. DeShone and John R. Sambursky. He will also tell the jurors of the events leading up to the killing of the policeman, his impressions at the time of the shooting and of what followed.

RELIGIOUS BOY DISAPPEARS

Albert White, fourteen, of King street, Dorchester, is missing from his home. The boy, who was intensely religious, according to his parents, left home five days ago and vanished. He took with him all the vestments used for household prayer by members of the Jewish faith.

A lavender stole, which is worn over the shoulder, may furnish a clew, police believe. Albert had no chums and was a model child. He helped his father, Joseph White, in the latter's grocery store in Park street, after school. The mother has been prostrated by his disappearance.

He is five feet, three inches in height, weighs 140 pounds, has a dark complexion, black eyes and brown hair. He wore a gray suit with knickers.

Man Impanel on Fence

Worcester, June 12 (A.P.).—Leaping from a second-story window at his home today, John White, 50 years old, was impaled on a picket fence and is in a critical condition in a hospital.

THE GIRL OF TODAY is the big theme in Beatrice Burton's new serial which begins next Monday in the Boston Evening American. You liked Burton's "GILDED KISSES" and her "PIRATE OF HEARTS." You'll be wild over this. Remember, next Monday.

LOVE SHATTERED IN WAR-TIME ROMANCE

State Senator Eben S. Draper and his wife, whose matrimonial crash has led to Paris divorce courts. The Senator has filed a suit, which his wife will not contest. It is understood he will grant her custody of their children and pay $6,000 a year alimony. The couple are in Paris awaiting trial of the pending case.

LOVE SONGS OF EX-WIFE HUMMED BY HARRY

Latter Pays "Surprise Visit" to Atlantic City; Plans to Buy Evelyn a House

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12 (I.N.S.).—Harry K. Thaw is back in Atlantic City, and again is enjoying the company of his former wife, Evelyn Nesbit.

He escorted her home from Martin's Cabaret on the Boardwalk at daylight, after they had been more or less in each other's company since midnight.

Miss Nesbit is doing a song and dance act at the cafe. She seemed surprised when she came into the cabaret a few minutes before midnight, accompanied by her son, Russell, and found Thaw there with a friend, Morgan Pendleton.

THAW HUMS TUNES.

Thaw, in evening clothes, walked over to her with a broad smile, took her hand and squeezed it. He bent toward her as though to kiss her. She laughingly turned her head as she greeted him. Russell said: "Hello, H. K."

Later Miss Nesbit sang a number of songs, including "I Never Knew," "I Love You" and "I'm Nobody's Mamma Now."

Thaw hummed the tunes. He seemed to be enjoying himself.

After she concluded her songs Miss Nesbit would sit at Thaw's table.

HOME FOR EVELYN.

It was reported that Thaw and Pendleton would confer with Burton Gaskill, a local attorney, today to discuss the proposed purchase of a house for Miss Nesbit opposite the Atlantic City Country Club.

Thaw planned to go to Pittsburgh later today to see his mother, who is ill. She celebrates her 86th birthday Monday.

U. S. EMPLOYES FLAY PAY CUT

Angry protests at consequent loss of salary are being voiced by more than 70 Federal employes in the Postoffice building through the relegation by the United States Civil Service Commission of the building from its first class rating to that of second class.

The local postoffice, which for a generation has held first class rank with Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Buffalo and Detroit, has now been condemned as second class by the supervising architect of the Treasury Department and in the annual list of salary promotions due the local Federal employes their rating has been reduced from $200 to $500 per annum, instead of having been raised as anticipated.

The spokesman for the disgruntled group is Harry A. Vose, assistant custodian of the Postoffice Building for the past twenty years and the one most affected by the demotion in classification.

HENRY RUSSELL WEDS IN PARIS

Paris, June 12 (A.P.).—Henry Russell, former managing director of the Boston Opera House, was married yesterday in the British consulate to Lady Patricia Blackwood, daughter of the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, Speaker of the Senate of northern Ireland.

DEAN OF TUFTS SCHOOL QUITS

Gardner C. Anthony, dean of Tufts Engineering School for twenty-three years, announced his resignation today at the annual field day of the Tufts Alumni. The resignation will take effect September 1.

"Pursuit of other interests" was given as Mr. Anthony's reason for retiring. He is author of many engineering text books. In 1887 he founded the Rhode Island Technical School.

Honorary degrees will be conferred on nine persons at commencement exercises Monday morning.

Those who will be honored include Governor Fuller, doctor of laws; Dr. Arial Wellington George, doctor of science; Dr. John Ridlon of Chicago, doctor of science; Arthur Lynn Andrews, dean of the University of Hawaii; Louise de Koven Bown, Chicago; George Inness, Jr., of New York; James Morgan, Boston newspaper man; Frederick L. Olmsted of Brookline, architect, and Claude Gernade Bowers, New York editor.

The feature of today's field day was the baseball game with Boston College.

A banquet followed at which past presidents of the classes, including Judge Stanley Wilson of Chelsea, Vt., were speakers.

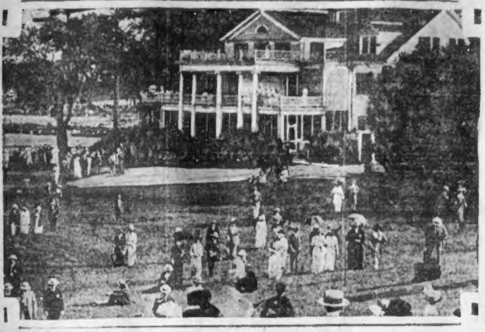
RETURNS TO "GOOD OLD TUFTS"

Mrs. Joel W. Reynolds, class of 1924 at Jackson, has arrived from her home in St. Louis for the Tufts-Jackson graduation exercises.

SPECIAL COURTESIES PLANNED FOR ROYALTY AT COUNTRY CLUB RACES NEXT SATURDAY



BROOKLINE COUNTRY CLUB SCENE OF RACING
The club will be the mecca of society on next Thursday and Saturday for two days of racing. The feature will be the presence of the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden on the second day.

WILL ATTEND
Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., will have a box party on both days.

OWNER
Miss Mary Weld has two steeplechasers entered.

HAS ENTRY
Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird owns another horse.

SPIRITED FINISHES LIKE THIS EXPECTED
Steeplechasers have been brought from England by the Eastern Horse Club to help revive the sport hereabouts. The royal guests will occupy Box 14 next Saturday when many other notables are expected.

SOCIETY BUZZES WITH PLANS FOR RACES

A ROYAL WELCOME AWAITS ROYAL GUESTS ON SATURDAY next, when it is expected that Their Royal Highnesses, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden will honor the Country Club races with their august presences.

B. MASON HAMLIN, grand master of ceremonies and arranger of numberless details, has, with his conferees, Messrs. Goodwin, Tuckerman and Macomber, outlined several special courtesies for the royal visitors, giving the day a highly Swedish-American flavor.

SWEDEN'S COLORS, gold and blue (a cross of gold on clear sky blue field), will snap from tall flagpoles, and a landeau, drawn by prancing high steppers with coachman and footman in swagger attire, will convey the royal visitors from the gate to their box.

THE EYES OF THE THRONG will focus on Box 14, where, surrounded by some seventy other boxes filled with Smart Setters, their Highnesses will be installed for the spectacle.

RECORD BREAKING CROWDS and supurb horseflesh going over the course promise a splendid revival of the old-time Country Club races. Famous horses and famous people will be there.

JOHN M. E. BOWMAN has a box and will have guests for both days of racing—the 17th and 19th. Mrs. Payne Whitney, known as the owner of winners all through the racing world, is expected.

HER CHERRY MALOTTE is a grand annual winner, bringing much glory to her Greentree stables. Marshall Field, Chicago magnate and owner of Labrador, sensational performer at Pimlico, is due for the races, likewise Joseph Widener, known from Paris to California.

RACERS AND STEEPLECHASERS from Baltimore and Philadelphia, the Green Spring Valley and the Devon meets are coming northward for the Eastern Horse Club's two days at the Country Club and local horses will be out in force.

SOFT WHITE GROS DE LONDRES, done in period mode, with bertha of honiton and veil of tulle, bound by an orange blossom chaplet, was the pretty wedding attire of Mrs. Charles Lakeman Ward (Pauline Bell Dillingham) for her ceremonial in Arlington Street Church.

TWO FEMININE ATTENDANTS, Mrs. Kendall Preston and Miss Dorothy M. Washburn, wore pale green chiffon frocks with deep capes, topped by picture hats of palest pink horsehair weighted with hydrangeas, a subtle French color scheme of much delicacy and beauty.

AFTER THE CEREMONIAL Mr. and Mrs. Ward received their friends informally, at the church. Both ceremonial and reception were informally done, owing to the bride's recent bereavement.

MID-JUNE SAILINGS to Europe continue to be a large part of the social interest—the flagship Paris of the French line takes out today Miss Sally Shiras, a prospective debutante, accompanied by Mrs. Sumner Crosby.

PROFESSOR JEAN JACQUES HOFFNER, of Harvard, with Madame Hoffner, and their family, Juliette, Monique, Francoise and Julia, sail for a Summer in France via the Paris. Professor Courtney Bruerton of Tufts also sails.

"TARNISHED WINGS," the new novel by Beatrice Burton, which begins next Monday in the Boston Evening American, will enthrall you even more than did her two previous serials: "Gilded Kisses" and "A Pirate of Hearts." Begin it next Monday and don't miss a single line.

MRS. LELAND POWERS and Mrs. Haven Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Royce, John B. Royce and Miss Carolyn Royce, are away to Europe for a summer-time holiday. Miss A. D. Chapon of Paris, is outbound.

MISS CHAPON HAS BEEN the house guest of Mrs. A. Webb Hyde of Dedham, and returns to her native Paris after the briefest of stays here. She and Mrs. Hyde were fellow voyagers to these shores only a few weeks ago.

THE PARIS ON HER LATEST crossing from France brought Mrs. George von L. Meyer, and her son, George von L. Meyer, Jr., of Boston and the Shore, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer, Miss Betty Tailer and T. Suffern Tailer, Jr., (prominent Newporters).

CLIMBING SURELY UP FAME'S ladder, Miss Elizabeth Converse, daughter of the Frederick Converses, is an honored student at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts. Her drawing from life has been included in the annual book.

MISS CONVERSE, FORGOING the usual debutante frivolities before and since her debut, has devoted her time to art studies. She is engaged to Dr. Sumner Roberts, and, as attractive as she is talented, will make a charming bride whenever wedding bells ring for her.

DOGS OF ALL SORTS AND SIZES, each with a pedigree most imposing, will appear at next Thursday's Ladies' Dog Club Show in the J. Randolph Coolidge estate in Chestnut Hill—and as is the usual thing with this annual affair, the financial returns go to the Children's Hospital.

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON HEADS the list of governors for the Dog Club, and other names appearing therein are Mrs. Albert J. Geiger, Jr., Miss Jean G. Hinkle, Mrs. George E. Peabody, Mrs. W. Palmer Jones, Mrs. Frank Hix Fayant, Mrs. Donald Gordon, Miss Rosalie Hayden and Mrs. Watson Coleman.

FOUR SAVED AFTER BEING HURLED OUT OF CANOES

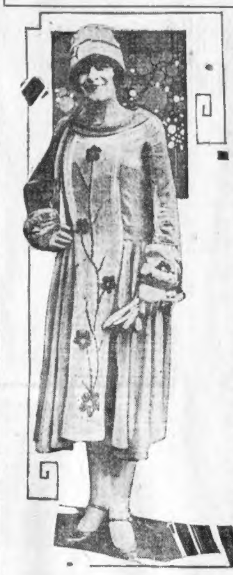
A handclasp between occupants of two canoes nearly caused the death of two girls and their escorts in Sluice Pond, Lynn. They were saved by Representative Fred Hutchinson, George Leonard and W. J. Sears, who swam to their rescue, fully clad.

Helen Urquhart

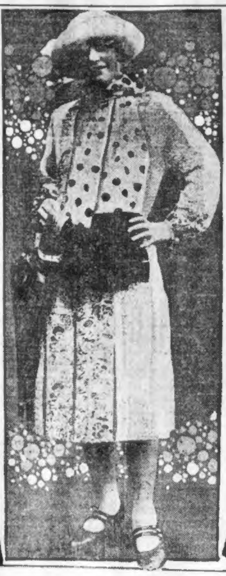
The rescued were Mary Jordan, No. 8 Fosdick terrace; Ray Barron, No. 65 Shephard street; Herbert W. Leach, No. 37 Bowler street, and Helen Urquhart, No. 252 Broadway, all of Lynn.

In two canoes they were paddling about when some good natured "joshing" was indulged in between Miss Jordan and Leach, ending when the [illegible] said, "all right, shake on it." [illegible] all four were soon in the water.

THESE GIRLS SHOW GOOD TASTE IN COSTUMES



OF BRIGHTON
Miss Ruth Boudreau's attractive costume includes a green silk dress with beige panel trimmed with green chenille embroidery and silver threads, straw hat with pink ribbon, beige chiffon hose, patent leather pumps and white kid gloves.



FROM DORCHESTER

A HUB FAIREST
Miss Elizabeth Passero is a strong supporter of cartwright shaped hat and is wearing a black one trimmed with brilliants. She looks attractive in a polka dot crepe dress with over blouse of blue georgette, nude hoisery and nude kid gloves. This is her idea of a well chosen costume.

PLEADS TO SAVE R. R. LINES

Burlington, Vt., June 12 (A.P.).—The New England council was asked today to use its influence to prevent the abandonment of railroad lines in New England, with particular reference to a proposal by the Boston & Maine to do away with a line between Portsmouth and North Berwick, N. H.

E. Curtis Matthews, Portsmouth banker, and a member of the council, brought up the question at the closing session. His request was referred to the executive committee. Mr. Matthews pointed out that the movement was one to divert freight traffic to the tax-maintained highways that already were overcrowded with motor traffic.

U. OF M. INSTALS ITS NEW PRESIDENT

Orono, Me., June 12 (A.P.)—The inauguration of Harold Sherburne Boardman, dean of the College of Agriculture, as president of University of Maine, will take place late this afternoon in the presence of Governor Ralph O. Brewster and former presidents A. W. Harris and George Emory Fellows.

The event will be the feature of Alumni Day.

Hearing Date Changed

The appeal of the promoters ten-story garage in Park squar St. James avenue from the dec. of Fire Marshal George C. Neal voking permits issued by the Bos street commissioners will be hea. at the State House by Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote on June 21 instead of June 28 as was first announced.

Quest for the Boston Girl Offers Fine Chance

What style of hat best enhances the face of The Boston Girl of 1926?

Three distinctly variant answers are advanced by the trio of typical smartly dressed girls whose photographs are published today as candidates for the consideration of the board of art and style authorities ultimately to select The Boston Girl of 1926 for whom the Boston Evening American is conducting a quest.

Miss Elizabeth Passero of Boston proper believes the cartwheel shaped hat is best. Miss Ruth Boudreau of Brighton inclines to the snug-fitting straws while Miss Maizie Foley of Dorchester brings into effective use the type of hat termed "round-off-the-face."

SILVER LAUREL.

The Silver Laurel, beautifully wrought after the ancient classical design, will altogether replace the hat of the personible girl chosen as The Boston Girl of 1926. And to the honor of receiving it as the permanent, valuable memento of a notable distinction, there will be added an award of

Two other maidens will be awarded miniatures of the Silver Laurel and additional awards, respectively, of an evening gown valued at $250 and a street ensemble valued at $100 with the privilege of exercising the option of accepting gold rather than the raiment.

Bear in mind that the quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 is in no way a beauty contest.

It is conducted on the idea of finding the up-to-date girl whose cleverness in choosing clothes most effectively enhancing her personality and bearing is keenest.

The Boston Evening American will in no way participate in actual selection of The Boston Girl of 1926, confining itself to offering the awards and presenting an opportunity to modish young women, of which they may avail themselves by sending in their photographs.

NOTED COMMITTEE.

The photographs will be submitted to a distinguished committee of judges who, utterly free from direction or suggestion on the part of The Boston Evening American will select a number of girls to appear before them for final consideration.

They are: Miss Lucy Park, associate editor, Harper's Bazar, a nationally known style authority; Mr. L. W. Sargent, director of the Sargent School of Physical Education, Cambridge, whose school is famed through the United States; Mr. Royal Bailey Farnum, director art education, Massachusetts Art School, Exeter and Newbury streets, and Mr. Cyrus Dallin, foremost American sculptor.

Please assist in finding The Boston Girl of 1926. Send in a photograph in a becoming dress, adding your name and address and describing the raiment worn. Come in any time if you wish a photograph taken to submit for consideration. There is no charge.

Address communications to The Boston Girl of 1926 Editor, Boston Evening American.

GIRL GETS JOB OF 'ELOPER'

Methuen, June 12.—Miss Lydia Deitrich was appointed acting town auditor today following the disappearance of the incumbent, John M. Laing, a married man, whose absence was reported simultaneously with the vanishing of Miss Merle Dow, clerk in the street department, and the daughter of Representative Robert W. Dow.

Miss Deitrich will fill the office pending a meeting of the Selectmen Monday night to consider a special election to name a successor to Laing.

The disappearance of the two city employes stunned their respective families.

Miss Dow left behind a grieving sweetheart. Mrs. Laing has been renedered ill by the absence of her husband.

Letters written by Laing indicate he planned a sea voyage. Miss Dow told her parents she was going to visit her sister in Norfolk Downs. Her father left her at a railroad station in Lawrence.

Harry Armstead, the sweetheart, who aided in the search for Miss Merle, said that all he wanted was to have her back. Mrs. Laing has indicated that she will welcome her husband if he returns.

Representative Dow said he had known Laing as a clean, manly fellow. He admitted he believes Laing

Four Die in Crashes

Interment was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

SEES NEW CODE FOR MARRIAGE

"The marriage of today is not the marriage of yesterday, and still less is it likely to be the marriage of tomorrow.

"The time may come when the ministration of the clergyman, the orange-blossoms and the robe of white, the Voice that breathed o'er Eden, the hired carriages and the white favors will be quaint social survivals of the backward suburbs and towns.

"Such a fading-out of marriage from its present stereotyped rigidity will put no end to mating.

"The men and women of the wider life and the larger views will still feel our common necessity to go in couples, for longer or shorter periods."

It is H. G. Wells speaking his startling views on marriage; commenting boldly on an institution that has been under more discussion, perhaps, than any other in the world.

In the July issue of Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan, "H. G.," characterized as "the foremost thinker of our time," declares that the Christian marriage "meets the needs of a peasant life with passable success."

Deprivation by the State of "legitimate sexual freedom," he asserts boldly is an all too intimate restriction.

Wells says further in his startling article:

"In every generation now we humiliate and injure scores of thousands of lives under the discrimination of illegitimacy, in deference to the imaginary needs of keeping together estates that our death duties are busily breaking up.

"These are things of the old order and the forces of progress thrust them aside, slowly but steadily.

"As we begin to take off the stays, blinkers, traces, hoods, masks, fetters, gags we have put upon the sexual imaginations of human beings, and examine into the living realities below, we may realize that we have been trying to adapt an immensely various collection of types to one standard bilateral arrangement."

ADAMOWSKIS TO SAIL FOR ENGLAND TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski, the former member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, are among the passengers who will sail tomorrow on the Cunarder Samaria bound for Queenstown and Liverpool, leaving the Cunard docks, East Boston, during the afternoon.

PROTECTION TO FARM GOODS URGED

Federal Reserve Bank Asked by the N. E. Council to Serve as Advisory Body

Burlington, Vt., Protection, identification and standardization of New England farm products was advocated in resolutions passed by the New England Council at its final conference today.

Other resolutions authorized the extension of an invitation to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston to act as an advisory co-operative body with the council and to urge officials of agricultural colleges and experimental stations to study developments in the field of agricultural economics.

NEXT MEETING PLACED.

The council, which is composed of men from New England States, who meet to further New England farm interests, voted to hold the next quarterly meeting at Breton Woods, N. H., on September 24-25.

The Federal Reserve Bank will be requested to nominate bank officers from the New England states to serve as a credit committee in connection with the research work of the council.

In the first day of the conference a general survey and analysis of the marketing of New England products was undertaken. Policies in marketing and problems of the consumers' needs were considered.

Making for the consumer what he wants and when he wants it, policies in production, management and selling; co-operative marketing and other important points were pointed out as essential to New England prosperity.

REQUEST TO COLLEGES.

A request to colleges of New England will be broadcast to establish courses in co-operative marketing in order to develop a group of young men capable of directing remunerative distribution of New England quality products.

The recent proposal of the Boston & Maine to eliminate the line between Portsmouth and North Berwick, N. H., led to a request to the council by E. Curtis Matthews, Portsmouth banker, to exert its influence to prevent abandonment of railroad lines. He pointed out that the movement would divert freight traffic to tax-maintained highways and that it would be detrimental to efficient freight transporation. His petition was referred to the executive committee.

CO-OPERATION ESSENTIAL.

Standardization and cooperative marketing in New England is essential, it was pointed out. Agricultural high schools are needed in the rural districts. Present practise of "educating young people away from the land" should be scrapped.

Ten million acres of New England waste land must be reclaimed into useful purposes.

It was pointed out also that more than $27,000 is being spent in advertising New England's recreational advantages this Summer, from Atlanta to Chicago, and best results are obtained through the medium of newspaper advertising. Also advertising New England as a vacation paradise has proved efficient in attracting new industries to this section.

BITTER FIGHT OVER TWO BARRED MASONIC CLUBS

Philadelphia, June 12 (A.P.).—The exclusion of two New York clubs for alleged un-Masonic conduct has met with stiff opposition in the convention of the National League of Masonic Clubs in session here. Despite the opposition, however, the expulsion of one club and the suspension of the other for a year by President Charles A. MacHenry was upheld by the board of directors.

The action was due to the passage by the two clubs of resolutions urging Congress to hold up ratification of the Italian debt settlement because of Premier Mussolini's alleged treatment of Italian Freemasons.

TRINITY COLLEGE GETS 3 NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Hartford, Ct., June 12 (A.P.).—Three new faculty members were appointed by the trustees of Trinity College today. Howard T. Engstrom, instructor in mathematics at the University of Maine, succeeds Assistant Professor Frederick J. H. Burkett in the mathematics department. Professor Burkett has been granted a year's leave of absence.

Kenneth S. Buxton, instructor in chemistry at the University of Vermont, relieves Sterling B. Smith as instructor in chemistry. Archie Bangs, who has just completed graduate work at Harvard, succeeds assistant Professor J. F. Yost in the German department.

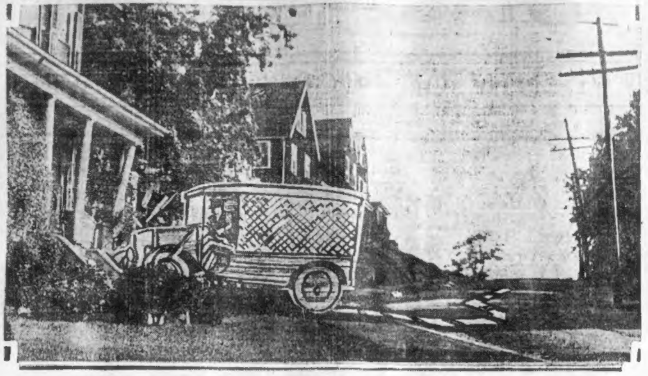
DRIVER DIES AFTER BRIGHTON MAIL TRUCK CRASHES INTO PIAZZA

CRUSHED IN WRECK
John J. McLaughlin, No. 47 Easton street, Allston, died today at St. Elizabeth Hospital from injuries received when his mail truck careened down hill and ploughed into the piazza of a house.



VIEW OF AUTO MAIL TRUCK IN FATAL ACCIDENT AT BRIGHTON
A broken steering gear is supposed to have caused the U. S. mail truck, driven by John J. McLaughlin, to start on its wild dash down the Bigelow street hill. The driver stuck to his wheel, but lost control. The machine swerved and plunged into the piazza of the home of John J. Sullivan. From the debris the driver was taken with a fractured skull.

WIDOW OF VICTIM
Mrs. Dorothy McLaughlin had, with her husband, been looking forward to the celebration of their wedding anniversary on June 17. He had been made a regular mail chauffeur several months ago.

152 WEST POINT GRADUATES

West Point, N. Y., June 12 (A.P.).—One hundred and fifty-two cadets were graduated from the United States Military Academy this morning.

The graduation exercises were attended by throngs of relatives and friends of the class who have been here during the week for the annual commencement program. All of the graduating cadets will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the army.

Cononel Hanford Macnider, Assistant Secretary of War, made the address to the class and handed each cadet his diploma. Major-General John L. Hines, chief of staff of the army, also spoke.

Cadet William G. Baker, Jr., of Clinton, Tenn., was the honor man of the class. Cadet Baker, who is twenty-two, and entered the academy on July 1, 1922, has led his class every year.

The class of 1927 will leave Monday for Mitchel Field and Fort H. G. Wright for a two weeks' course in aviation and coast artillery work. Upon their return to West Point the corps of cadets will move into Camp Clinton for the Summer. Four hundred new cadets, or "plebes," are expected to report for admission on July 1.

MRS. SCHOLTEN HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Salem, June 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Margaret Scholten of Middleton was held without bail for the Grand Jury in District Court here today on the charge of murder in connection with the death of Timothy McCarthy of Middleton, June 7.

McCarthy, employed at the Maplewood Inn in Middletton, which is owned by Mrs. Scholten, died at a Peabody hosital from knife wounds.

Fill Army Camp Quota

Washington, June 12 (A.P.).—The full quota for army citizens military training camps has been attained. A total of 35,582 citizens today had applied for training.

Fuller Issues Proclamation for Flag Day

A general display of the colors next Monday is called for in a proclamation issued today by Governor Fuller. For Monday is "Flag Day."

"On this Flag Day," says the Governor, "fragrant as it is with the memories of the sacrifices that have been laid upon the altar of our country, let us, with the high purpose of our forefathers, pledge a new fidelity to the Union and allegiance to the government."

ROW ON LETTER TO WADSWORTH

Washington, June 12 (A.P.).—Whether the Congressional Record is a proper organ for publication of the New York Democrats' letter to Senator Wadsworth on his pronouncement against prohibition has become a subject of complicated, though minor controversy in the House.

The letter, sponsored by Democratic members of the New York delegation, was published shortly after Senator Wadsworth, who is a candidate for renomination, had declared himself on the wet and dry issue. It appeared in Thursday's issue of the Record as an "extension of remarks" by Representative O'Connor, Democrat, New York.

The Senator was accused of turning political flip-flops on prohibition, his votes for dry measures being cited.

WELCOME HOUSE ASKS TO TRANSFER ASSETS

The Welcome House, Inc., which maintains a non-sectarian home for girls on Bowdoin street, Dorchester, has filed a petition in the Supreme Court asking to be allowed to transfer all its assets, including its Dorchester real estate and a fund of $40,000, to the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion, which is ready to carry on the work formerly done by the Welcome House.

$150,000 FIRE IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Ct., June 12 (A.P.).—The twisted frames of thirty-nine automobiles, hundreds of pieces of charred furniture, tons of water-soaked paper and the blistered remains of automobile tubes and tires mark the scene of a fire that early today swept through the Arcade Garage at No. 169 Cannon street, the B. F. Goodrich Tire Agency, Nothnagle's furniture storage warehouse, the Lasher & Gleason Paper Company and the Sherwood Press.

The loss is estimated at $150,000. Gasoline tanks in the cars stored in the back of the garage began to explode shortly after the fire broke out. Flaming gasoline caused a rapid spread of the fire, and the flames, bursting through the roof, shot 200 feet into the air.

WOMAN WINNER OF PRIZE

A woman won first prize again today in the Boston Evening American Unusual Pictures contest, while second honors went to a Neponset man.

Mrs. W. F. Spalding, No. 65 Lexington avenue, Somerville, took the first award, a pair of $5 seats for the annual boxing carnival of the Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion, at Braves Field, June 28.

Second prize, two $3 seats to the carnival, goes to Arthur Zahn, No. 12 Clover road, Neponset.

Each day awards are made for the two best pictures submitted in the contest.

That is, of course, the two most unusual pictures with a human interest appeal or with situations that appeal to the humor.

Look over the snapshots that you have. You will probably find just the kind of a photo that is winning awards every day in the contest. If you haven't an entry in your album, try a few shots with your camera and send them in to the Unusual Picture Editor. Each picture submitted will be considered on the merits of the subject matter. The quality of the photograph doesn't count.

The contest will end June 19. The last winners will be announced on the following Monday, June 21.

CHARLES B. KATZ IS MISSING FROM HOME

In the hope that their missing nephew, Charles B. Katz, nineteen, may be induced either to write or to return home, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Wolfson of No. 68 Fowler street, Dorchester, today asked the Boston Evening American to publish an appeal to him.

Katz, who had been living with them, left without a trace a year ago and they believe he may have enlisted in the navy. Mrs. Wolfson has been in poor health and is anxious to hear from him.

STATE TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL IN JUDGE'S CASE

Concord, N. H., June 12 (A.P.).—The State of New Hampshire will move for another trial of Judge Fred A. Jones of Lebanon, whose trial in Woodsville on a second degree manslaughter charge resulted in a disagrement early today. This announcement was made by Attorney General Jeremy Waldron, who conducted the State's case in the trial. The motion will be made, he said, at the next session of the Grafton County Superior Court. Judge Jones was indicted after an automobile he was driving upset, killed Mrs. Mildred Presley, a passenger in the car.

LOBBY RETURNS FILED AT THE STATE HOUSE

Lobby returns filed with the Secretary of State today disclose that the Boston Elevated directors paid $1,000 to Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall for services in connection with legislation affecting the extension of the public control act.

The Boston & Maine paid James B. Brown $3,000, the Revere Taxpayer's Assn., seeking to annex Revere to Boston, paid Attorney Albert Hurwitz $300. The Mutual Fire Insurance Company paid George L. Barnes $1,000.

EDEN ANSWERS HUB QUESTIONS

Readers of the Boston Evening American asking questions of Miss Hope Eden, mystic, appearing at the Columbia Theatre, will here find some of the answers today. Miss Eden makes the following replies:

Eva D. Jones—The publishers have informed you correctly. Of course you can publish it yourself but it would not be a financial success.

R. T. J.—The trouble to which you refer was largely of your own making, however, another chance is going to be given you, so take advantage of it.

Mrs. Bertha—You seem to be a seething mass of unhappiness, but you will have to take the matter in hand, make the best of it, and by all means—forget Nova Scotia.

S. P.—Your question reads: "I like to know if I am going to do well in business," and I would say that the year 1926 is not going to be very good for you, however, 1927 will be very good financially.

R. F. D.—I do not feel that your case will go as far as the divorce court. There will be a reconciliation effected—comparatively soon.

M. M. M.—You will sell your property by Fall, but you will not get the amount you are asking.

Alexander G.—You are asking too much of life. You want success in business, the girl you have in mind, health, wealth and happiness. Couldn't you use the Boston Common? Your business prospects will be slow, which will retard your matrimonial prospects.

Mrs. M. P.—You are contemplating returning to your former position and you should do so by all means. You will find conditions pleasanter than they formerly were.

P. D. N.—The inner urge that you feel should not be held in abeyance. True, you have not found the proper outlet for it. You have a strong literary tendency and if properly fostered, you should be heard from.

Rose R.—You are wronging your friend in thinking that he has your ring. He has told you the truth.

James E.—The uncle to whom you refer will not come to the States until the latter part of the year. Am I correct in saying he is now in Cuba?

Florence J.—You will find that your mother-in-law is on the road to recovery now. You are going to receive a communication from her very soon.

WEST ROXBURY HEAD MASTER TO RETIRE

After 27 years of service in the West Roxbury schools, Gardner P. Balch, head master of the Robert Gould Shaw School, is to retire.

Gardner P. Balch

The residents of the district, in cooperation with the Parent-Teachers Association, have planned a public reception for June 16 in the hall of the Robert G. Shaw School where a suitable testimonial will be given to Mr. Balch as a tribute from the men, women and children of West Roxbury.

PARENTS APPEAL FOR AID TO FIND MISSING BOY

If a three-year-old boy, with light hair and a black play-suit, is seen wandering the streets aimlessly, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. McMurer, No. 5 Walnut street, Roxbury, would like him returned. The youngster left home today while his mother was away on a brief errand. His playmates in the neighborhood hadn't seen him and the parents are unable to find any trace of little Louis. He is a cute youngster with blue eyes. He wore socks and black patent-leather shoes with grey tops.

BOMBS ROCK HOUSES IN GARFIELD STRIKE

Garfield, N. J., June 12 (A.P.).—The Outwater Lane district was rocked early today by explosion of two bombs which shattered windows of two houses. One is occupied by Bernard Bethmann, a worker in Botany Worsted Mills, Passaic. The other is the home of Stephen Navy, who is not a textile worker and has

Minister Kicks on Food in Boarding House

Alexine C. Barroll of Brookline, living at No. 1049 Beacon street, has brought suit in the Superior Court of Suffolk County for $500 against the Rev. Thomas Van Ness to recover for alleged breach of contract on the part of Mr. Van Ness to remain as a boarder and lodger of the plaintiff until June 15 of this year.

Mr. Van Ness says that if the contract to recover is proven, which contract he denies, the plaintiff made and broke an agreement to furnish him and his wife good, wholesome food, appetizing and of good quality, and to keep the rooms reasonably warm and to provide suitable and proper table board and living quarters.

Sixty-five Degrees at Storrs

Storrs, Ct., June 12 (A.P.).—Degrees were given to sixty-five graduates at the forty-second commencement exercises at the Connecticut Agricultural College here today. Rev. Dr. James Gordan Gilkey of Springfield, Mass., was the speaker.

ELKS FLAG DAY ON COMMON

Flag Day, annually observed by the Boston Lodge of Elks, will be celebrated at the Parkman Stand, Boston Common, tomorrow afternoon, with elaborate ceremonies. The Elks will march from their club house on Somerset street headed by the Navy yard band, Guard of Honor and Color Bearers, to the Common.

Daniel J. Kane

The officers of the lodge will present special ritualistic exercises while a fine program will be offered by the band and glee club and outside talent.

SENATE VOTES $165,000,000 FOR ROADS

Approves Bill to Complete 10 Trans-Continental Highways by 1931

Washington, June 12 (Universal).—The good roads bill, authorizing an expenditure of $165,000,000 over a period of two years ending June 30, 1929, a part of the Federal State governments' ten billion-dollar trans-continental highway program, was adopted by the Senate, 53 to 6.

After voting down amendments offered by Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, to curtail the Federal government's paticipation in good roads building by an overwhelming vote, the Senate committed the government to continue its Federal-aid road construction work started in 1921.

A bill proposing the highways development now in progess was introduced by William Randolph Hearst when he was a member of Congress in [illegible].

10 NATIONAL HIGHWAYS.

Under plans prepared, ten East-West and North-South trans-continental highways are to become a reality by 1931, and interconnecting roads will gridiron the nation.

Under the terms of the bill, the program of 50-50 contributions by the government and the States will be continued.

More than 66,000 miles of the 200,000 miles included in the system already have been initially improved.

A $75,000,000 appropriation to continue the work for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1926, has already been made by Congress.

TREE PLAN APPROVED.

The only amendment of consequence accepted provides for a plan to plant trees along the main highways.

Senators Bingham, Wadsworth and Reed all attacked the measure as a method of using funds secured largely from the rich and populous Eastern States for the benefit of the West.

Their objection was met by Senator Edge (R), of New Jersey, who said:

"Although New Jersey gets back only twenty per cent. of what she contributes to this measure, I can't conceive of no action on the part of the Federal government that will pay greater dividends than good roads."

House concurrence in Senate amendments is assured, leaders declare.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Heavy Detail for Mr. Martel.

The mammoth Metropolitan organ will be tuned to a new electrical device next week and will be utilized by Arthur Martel for accompaniments to numbers by Marion Talley, Enrico Caruso and Paul Whiteman's Band. Something of a mechanical appearance by famous people.

NO NEW DISHES BUT PLENTY OF GOOD FARE ON WEEK'S DRAMATIC MENU

BARBARA GRACE, energetic performer with "Merry Merry," the Summery entertainment at the Plymouth.

TWO QUEER CUSTOMERS, Tom Wilson and William Collier, Jr., in "The Rainmaker" at the Metropolitan. Collier is a jockey who seems to have a "pull" with the Lord, he prays and the reins and the rains do his bidding.

Ida May Sparrow, fluttering ballerina, is right on her toes and poised for flight into the mazes of the dance next week at B. F. Keith's.

Following the swallow is no more difficult than trying to catch up with the flying feet of Ida May Sparrow, talented child of terpsichore.

MAN-EATING WOLVES ASSAIL PRODUCERS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

FAME is elusive! If you ask Mr. George Ford to define his own brand of eminence he will frankly tell you his mind is still a blank—that is, he isn't sure whether his fame descends from a long stretch of theatrical ancestry or because he is simply and dutifully Helen Ford's husband. George is inclined to the thought that he is principally famous at this moment because Helen Ford is glorifying the family name so brightly in "Dearest Enemy," wherein one is the star of the play and the other its manager, director and general factotum.

IT is a matter of no minor moment that Mr. Ford and his forbears move back in American theatrical history to the early days of the Nineteenth Century when a great-great grandfather, Alexander Drake, slipped out of England on a slow sailing schooner and finally landed in Boston. That was in 1800. From that date forward the descendants of the elder Drake have clung to the theatre. "Of course," explained Mr. Ford anxiously, "the Ford side of the family also has been prominent as a theatrical family. My father was manager of Ford's Theatre in Washington at the time Lincoln was assassinated and his elder brother, John T. Ford, was the pioneer producer in Baltimore. So, you see, the Fords have done a little on their own account."

• • •

THE present very active representative of the Ford family is taking his first fling at producing on a big time scale, and his descent upon Broadway and Tremont street with "Dearest Enemy" was accompanied by all the well-known pitfalls that are carefully laid down for the young and inexperienced producer. "The problems of a new producer are staggering," he said. "Why, when my great, etc., Grand-dad Drake assailed the frontier at Albany, N. Y., in 1801 all he had to look out for were Indians, wolves, floods and impossible roads—but business was always good.

• • •

MR. FORD hesitated and then snatched eagerly at an illustration. "What were a few Indians and some snarling wolves," he asked, "when the whole continent was theirs? Compare those minor difficulties to the man-eating wolves of the present day—customers, scene painters, carpenters, bill-posters and advertising, railroad and hotel agents that now catch you at every turn. And my dear old grand-dad did not have to face the 'man-eating-movies.' I use that phrase not facetiously but seriously because the galloping tin types are not only gobbling up our foremost actors, authors and artists, but they are making it a manufacturing game. The picture producers sell a season's output in advance, while the theatrical producer has to resell his product in every principal city in the country. There is no season's guarantee with any stage show." And Mr. Ford let it go at that.

CHILDREN ONCE CRIED FOR CANDY AND COOKIES; NOW THEY YELL LUSTILY FOR "THE GREEN HAT"

THE boys in the box office call "The Green Hat" the "Flappers' Delight," for they are in a position to know who buy seats in the largest blocks. Incidentally, it has leaked out that A. H. Woods has been the object of some criticism for producing a play that coaxes so many bobbed heads and rolled stockings into the balconies and galleries. Even Katherine Cornell, who plays the anacreontic Iris March does not escape attack from busy letter writers who beg an exlanation of the interest shown by young girls in this naughty youngster.

BOX OFFICE
THERE'S A LITTLE BIT OF 'IRIS' IN EVERY WOMAN
"IRIS" HERSELF

IT is no part of an actress's duty to answer questions that rightly should be addressed to the author, but as Michael Arlen is somewhere in his old home town in Armenia, Miss Cornell has consented, for once, to pinch hit for him. "I cannot speak for Mr. Arlen," she explained; "he has seen life and has written about it as he has seen it, and I [illegible] no doubt that [illegible] Iris do exist. In fact, I believe there [illegible] little bit of Iri[illegible] every woman and that is the secret of "The [illegible] Hat" succ[illegible] girls like the play because it is a [illegible] youth and [illegible] of youth."

High Priestess of Jazz to Be Seen at Loew's State

"Bee" Palmer, originator of the Charleston, pioneer jazz singer and the girl whom Florenz Ziegfeld engaged but two days after she had made her first public appearance, headlines the bill at Loew's State for the new week. Miss Palmer is assisted by Al Siegel at the piano and in addition she is to present Sammy Lewis, one of the star dancers from her erstwhile stage productions. This is Miss Palmer's first Boston engagement, but her absence heretofore is explained in her long terms with Ziegfeld, the Folies Bergere of Paris and her own show in Chicago. Also included in the State stage show is the broadcasting duo of "Willie" Robyn and Celia Turrill of Major Bowes' Capitol Theatre Family.

DRAMA OF THE RACE TRACK AT 'MET'

Did you ever hear of Walter Robbins?

For three successive years Walter Robbins was rated America's best jockey. His career on the Eastern tracks was a succession of racing triumphs. The increasing weight, the nemesis of all jockeys, overtook him and his racing days were over.

Since then he has been profitably employing his time and racing knowledge in vaudeville and in motion pictures. In Paramount's spectacular love drama, "The Rainmaker" at the Metropolitan next week, Robbins plays the important role of a starter in the big Inaugural Handicap, in which William Collier, Jr., as "Jockey Robertson"—the "Rainmaker"—rides to a fall.

The camera is accurate and shows Robbins sending the big field of horses away to a perfect start. Incidentally, he furnished valuable technical aid to Director Clarence Badger in the filming of the thrilling race scenes.

"The Rainmaker" has for its theme the regeneration of two drab souls, a jockey and a dance hall girl, who start their life's race saddled with human weaknesses but who find themselves in the midst of thrilling scenes. The acme of realism is said to have been obtained in filming tremendous fire and flood scenes.

CHANGES AT KEITH'S

Continuing its Summer policy of the all-variety bill at reduced rates, B. F. Keith's announces the following turns for the new week: Bob and Gale Sherwood, versatile vaudevillians and company in a revue; Joseph Stanley and Wahnita Wilcox in a comic skit, "Waiting"; Mayo and Linn in their humorous sketch, "You've Dropped a Thread'; Paul Remos and his midgets; Libby and Sparrow, musical comedy stars; Paul Kirkland in "The High Stepper"; Nat Leipsic in card tricks; Billy Abbot in a comedy act, "The Thief;" Clifford and Grey, jugglers, and others, complete the program.

REVERE WILL CELEBRATE K. OF C. DAY

Knights of Columbus Day at Revere Beach will be celebrated tonight with a big display of fire works and many new "added attractions."

One of the brightest features of these will be a public exhibition of high and fancy diving by Sophie "Swan" Ringen and her "Diving Girlies" in a specially constructed pool on the beach. It has been further arranged to have this feature continue throughout next week.

The pyrotechnic display will be a reproduction of the battle of Chateau Thierry and is intended to be the most pretentious exhibition of its kind ever seen in New England. Something new by way of set-pieces is promised and the boom of the aerial bombs will be heard for miles around.

Besides the new features the proprietors of the various amusement places have joined hands in an effort to make Knights of Columbus Day at Revere particularly attractive.

Spanish Actress Answers Ibanez' Pronouncements

Blasco Ibanez' revolt against King Alfonso of Spain has met a motion picture snag. Helena D'Arcy, beautiful Spanish actress, who plays one of the principal roles in Josef von Sternberg's "The Exquisite Sinner," at the Orpheum next week, has rallied to the imperial standard and defends the monarch with as much vigor as the famous novelist assails him. Miss D'Arcy was born in Spain and lived much of her young life under Alfonso's rulership. "He's the most democratic and popular monarch Spain has ever had," says Miss D'Arcy, who has met the king personally on several occasions, "and I am sure the people would never consent to giving him up. Senor Ibanez is a great writer, but I cannot make myself think he believes the many bad things he is credited with saying about the Spanish throne."

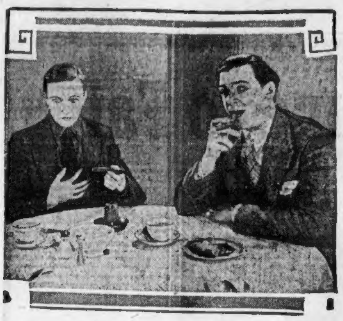
FILMSTERS HOLD TO MID-SEASON FORM IN COMING TALES FROM CINEMA



TO A WOMAN who is only a woman, a good cigar is no joke—or that's the way Anna Q. Nilsson feels as she lights up with Walter Pidgeon in "Miss Nobody" (Olympia), for the Havana will have Anna all to the Colorado maduro.

A KNIGHT OF THE BATH is little Freddie Cox who, with Bessie Love and William Haines, steps right in and does the acting honors in "Lovey Mary," the new film at Loew's State.

PAT O'MALLEY, sturdy and strong, saves the heroine in the good old fashioned way in "My Old Dutch" at the New Boston.

"MEET MY HERO," says Renee Adoree to Mathew Betz as she points to Conrad Nagel in "The Exquisite Sinner" (Orpheum), the gay comedy where fortune favors the brave, the gypsy gets gypped and art flourishes.

INDIAN LOVE CALL, but no answering hail from Priscilla Dean in "The Dice Woman" (Fenway), for the plump and midget maharajah hasn't a chance with the harem, scare 'em lady of the spotted cubes.

VOGUES VEER; VERITIES REMAIN

That styles change in the matter of entertainment as well as in other advances in the march of human progress is evidenced by a comparison of the up-to-the-minute offerings in the shadowy cinema as against the film presentations of but a few years ago.

And with these swift changes a highly opinionated and distinctly vocal group have risen to insist upon further modification—they deplore the happy ending, they murmur against the melodrama, they ridicule romance and, in short, are generally inimical to all the good old stimulants that are regularly administered to keep picture audiences from dreamless slumber.

But if, as one great thinker has said, progress merely means leaving things behind, the films may hardly be said to have moved forward so very speedily when certain things are considered. There is still the happy ending, romance throbs and thrives and the rushing melodrama continues to sweep all before it.

Nevertheless, motion pictures have improved and they have done it by leaving many things behind, but, if "The Big Parade," hailed as the biggest success of its time, may be taken as an example, their progress ceases when they relinquish the tried and true elements of popular appeal—of such stuff are dreams made.

'SHERWOODS,' HEADLINERS AT KEITH'S

Gale and Bob Sherwood, to be seen next week at Keith's, began their stage career as a piano duo. Each sat at a grand piano and played and sang novelty numbers. Then they added a drummer, who was also a dancer, and the duo became a trio. Also the nucleus was formed of the present organization of twelve, known as "The Sherwoods" and one of the most versatile in the country.

Bob and Gale collect theatrical talent as others collect china, silver or rare old snuff boxes. They would travel miles to interview some clever youngster and from all parts of the United States they have gathered their present company, all of whom can sing, dance, play parts, and put on twenty different acts at a moment's notice.

An extraordinary example of their versatility was given when they appeared for two weeks with Dorothy Jardon. The first week The Sherwoods staged an old-fashioned southern skit, in blackface, called "Crinoline Days" as a background for the operatic star. The next week she wished to sing selections from Carmen, so the Sherwoods put on a Spanish act, castanets, mantillas and all to supply the proper atmosphere. Incidentally, Miss Jardon refused to sing with the house orchestra, so the Sherwoods accompanied all her numbers.

Here's One More Rooter For The Sunny Southland

Polly Schaefer, one of the sprightly dancers of "Merry Merry," now at the Plymouth, was born in Louisville, Ky. This fact she wants emphasized, as the South is to her as "the sidewalks of New York" are to Governor "Al" Smith. Miss Schaefer's first opportunity to appear on the stage came when she was very young, so young, in fact, that she doesn't quite remember what it was all about, as she was carried on the stage to play the role of a 1-year-old baby. But her big chance came as the result of being one of the prize winners at the second pageant at Atlantic City. In this contest Miss Schaefer was awarded second prize and was immediately signed up by Mr. Zeigfeld to appear in his productions.

Crossing Swords in Poesy Leads Him Far Astray

Regardless of the hint of a Pollyanna personality, Mary Ediss, one of Mary Young's main supports in "Dancing Mothers" at the Copley, stoutly avers that it is perfectly proper possible and practical to heed the poet and "stand unhurt amidst the war of elements." by smiling always with the "never failing serenity of countenance that flourishes in immortal youth." "At least," she adds, "it's a great asset for the actress, especially when applied to that 'immortal youth' part." This last with such a sly look at her interrogator that he, poor fellow, weakly mumbling something about the fallacy of "looking at the world through rose colored glasses," departed in a hurry with the wrong hat and a brand new inferiority complex.

Bessie Tomashefsky Will Appear at the Shawmut

Patrons of the Yiddish stage will have added opportunity for enjoyment in witnessing the performance of Bessie Tomashefsky who appears personally at the Shawmut Theatre, in the Grove Hall section of Roxbury, for a special engagement of two days only, Monday and Tuesday of next week. Hailed as the greatest comedienne of the Jewish theatre, Miss Tomashefsky's appearance at the Shawmut is awaited with interest by the many who are already acquainted with her great talent and her extensive repertory of character songs.

'DYBBUK' HELD OVER FOR NEW WEEK

The Yiddish Art Theatre Players, now appearing in its repertoire of classic Jewish plays, given in Yiddish, will open their second and final week at the Grand Opera House with "The Dybbuk," which will be given on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

During the remainder of the week a bill of equally notable masterpieces of Jewish dramatic literature will be given. The Chalk Circle, a powerful four-act Chinese love drama by Kolbund, will be given on Friday, Saturday matinee and evening. "The Ghosts," by Ibsen, will be played on Sunday evening.

Sonia Radina

"The Dybbuk" is a dramatic Jewish folk legend, and one of the theatrical sensations of the Yiddish and English stage. The play, though acted in Yiddish, can be understood by those not conversant with the tongue because of the excellent acting of the players. During the opening week more than 3000 Gentiles saw the play at the Grand Opera House.

The cast includes forty persons, all of them acclaimed as character delineators of the highest order.

Results of Metropolitan Film Tests To Be Shown

The screen tests of 38 young men and women of Greater Boston, which were taken at the Metropolitan Theatre a month ago, will be flashed on the screen at this theatre next week as an added attraction. While no definite word has been received on the availability of any candidate as screen material, it is generally understood that the New England entrants are regarded favorably by the committee of judges, which is composed of D. W. Griffith, Allen Dwan and Mal St. Clair.

Among those who received film tests and who will be shown on the Metropolitan screen are: Josephine Moore, Viola Schmidt, Edward Riley, Louis Pous, Rosemary Wallace, Mildred Racoppi, John G. MacDougall, Helen Barnes, Yvonne Flaherty, Helen Perkins, Madeline Dunning and Clara Johnson, all of Boston; Ethelyne Holtzman, of Brookline; Howard Dustin, of Melrose; Carson Wilkey, of Cambridge; Marga Phillips, of Malden; Evelyn Grush, of Somerville; Dorothy Rourke, of Newton; Irene Callahan, of North Andover; Ora Davis, of Cambridge; Dolores Newman, of Arlington; Estelle Zintz, of Brookline; George L. Wallace, of Wrentham; Rose Vetromile, of Malden; Priscilla Wakefield, of Cambridge; Marjorie Rapf, of Roslindale and Stuart Bliss, of Newburyport.

Hillyer Pleads Cause of The Film Producers

That motion picture producers are fully justified in changing the original titles of books and stories when adapting them for use in the films is the contention of Lambert Hillyer who is responsible for the production of "Miss Nobody," feature photoplay for the new week at the Washington street Olympia. The story of "Miss Nobody," first ran in serial form in the Boston Evening American several months ago as "Shebo," but the producers of the film decided to change the title because it was, in their opinion, less closely associated with the story than the new one. Mr. Hillyer claims that the film people's first obligation is to the wide public that goes to the theatre but seldom indulges in modern fiction.

HARVARD MAN TO MARRY

Marriage intentions were filed at Cambridge City Hall today by Henry Albert Sawyer, 35, connected with the Harvard Observatory as an observer. He was divorced from Rose C. Sawyer, a Somerville woman, in 1924. He is to marry Vasiliki D. Petropoulis, 21, a governess of Tewksbury.

Sawyer gave his address as No. 140 Garden street and his birthplace in Worcester, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Sawyer.

It was revealed that a decree nisi was secured on April 3, 1924, on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and that his former wife was awarded the custody of the daughter, Muriel Rose, of Somerville.

YIDDISH PLAYERS IN FINE PERFORMANCE

"Sabbati Zevi," a drama by J. Zhulavsky, was presented by the Yiddish Art Theatre Company at the Grand Opera House last night. A large audience witnessed another very fine play, presented by this extraordinary company.

"Sabbati Zevi" deals with the Jewish false Messiah of that name, who arose to great power several centuries ago. It is an extremely well-developed and closely-knit play, gaining power steadily from the first act, when the false deliverer first appears, to the final scene when he renounces his pretended powers.

The acting was generally good throughout, with Mr. Schwartz again scoring a great personal triumph. Settings and direction were in the usual carefully-planned manner of the company, and the lighting was excellently managed. The audience was very enthusiastic at the close of the performance.

PAY TOO LOW TO WED, KILLS SELF

Leavenworth, Kan., June 12 (A. P.)—Believing his $125 a month salary a bar to marriage with Louise Vanderschmidt, his fiancee, daughter of a wealthy merchant here, Glenwood G. Hines, 23-year-old bank teller, shot himself to death in the Wulfekuhler State Bank.

Radiograms were broadcast throughout the East last night and telegrams sent today in an effort to locate Miss Vanderschmidt, who left Andover, Mass., Wednesday by automobile for Leavenworth, accompanied by her uncle and aunt, Miss Emma Vanderschmidt and Fred Vanderschmidt, a merchant.

Hines' books were found in excellent condition.

MERCHANT ACQUITTED IN SOMERVILLE PUPIL RIOT

Samuel Finkelstein, proprietor of a store in Highland avenue, Somerville, was found not guilty today in Somerville court of assaulting Frank M. Lutz of No. 34 Calvin street, a student in Somerville High School. Finkelstein was arrested several days ago following a "riot" of high school children in his store. Judge Sturtevant termed it a case of rowdyism.

'MIRACLE WOMAN' CHECKS RUM SALES IN VANISHING

San Francisco, June 12 (A.P.)—The disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, has caused a decided rise in the price of liquor, says Ned M. Green, district prohibition administrator, because the patrol of Mrs. McPherson's followers along the water at Ocean Beach near Los Angeles has checked smuggling.

CHILD BADLY BURNED BY DRINKING LYE

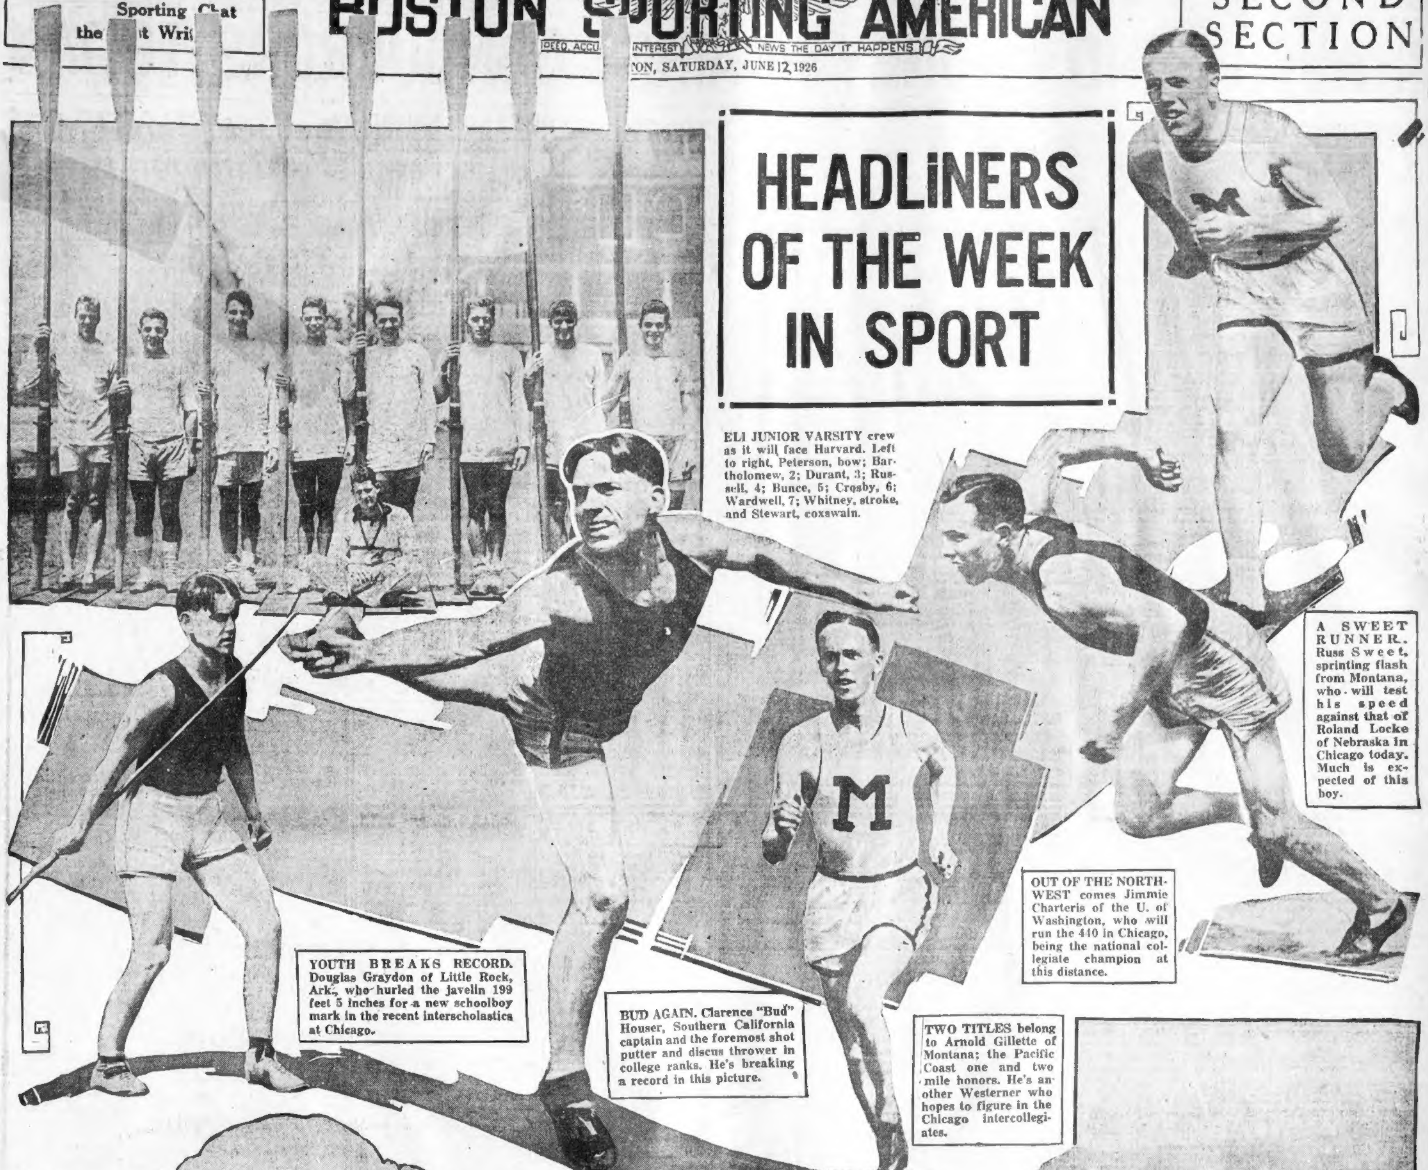
SECOND SECTION

HEADLINERS OF THE WEEK IN SPORT



ELI JUNIOR VARSITY crew as it will face Harvard. Left to right, Peterson, bow; Bartholomew, 2; Durant, 3; Russell, 4; Bunce, 5; Crosby, 6; Wardwell, 7; Whitney, stroke, and Stewart, coxswain.

A SWEET RUNNER. Russ Sweet, sprinting flash from Montana, who will test his speed against that of Roland Locke of Nebraska in Chicago today. Much is expected of this boy.

OUT OF THE NORTHWEST comes Jimmie Charteris of the U. of Washington, who will run the 440 in Chicago, being the national collegiate champion at this distance.

YOUTH BREAKS RECORD. Douglas Graydon of Little Rock, Ark., who hurled the javelin 199 feet 5 inches for a new schoolboy mark in the recent interscholastics at Chicago.

BUD AGAIN. Clarence "Bud" Houser, Southern California captain and the foremost shot putter and discus thrower in college ranks. He's breaking a record in this picture.

TWO TITLES belong to Arnold Gillette of Montana; the Pacific Coast one and two mile honors. He's another Westerner who hopes to figure in the Chicago intercollegiates.

BEAT HARVARD! That's the cry at New Haven and at Gales Ferry as the Eli varsity crew goes through its strenuous practice preparatory to the all-important race the 25th. This shows one phase of the Blue oarmen's training.

Vernon Munroe, Jr., of New York, has been elected captain of the Exeter track team for next season.

Manager Bancroft Is Undismayed by Sudden End of Tribe's Winning List

Freigau threw out Burrus. NO RUNS.

• • •

Young Mr. Bancroft, who is performing daily miracles at shortstop, didn't mind the ruin of the victory parade in the least. He's as happy as a kid on Christmas because his club has come back, and he's very sure that the Braves will remain in the fight, now that they've drawn up close.

"Winning too many isn't good for a young ball club," Banny explains. "It's hard to make a kid realize that he has to bear down every day all season, after he sees six or seven games come in without any trouble at all. A team that gets on a wild streak grows careless. The breaks stop coming, and then there's a slump before things straighten out.

"That has been one of the troubles with this team for the last couple of years. After we had licked the leaders we thought the second division teams would be easy. And they just used us for doormats. The Phillies licked us for that reason at first, and did it so often that we felt we were jinxed every time we played them. So they kept on beating us.

"The Braves never lost their scrap or their hope while things were tough, and now that they've won a few they have the real spirit, the pep that a team needs to get anywhere. There are a lot of rough spots yet that need filing down, but we've been so busy trying to get on the right side of things that we haven't paid too much attention to the fine points.

"Our pitchers are all beginning to look good, and the regular players are all in shape now. We have nothing on our minds about pennants or that stuff. We just want to get up where we think we belong and let the future look out for itself."

Yacht Racing Season Is On

The official yacht racing season opens this afternoon at Marblehead with the Corinthian Yacht Club holding its open, first series regatta. No doubt with the excellent weather a much larger gathering of sailors will appear ready to compete than at last week's Eastern Yacht Club informal opening.

Surely more than a half hundred crafts from the Class Q to that of the Brutal Beasts will be seen skimming about the yacht capital. Among the likely starters in the Class Q, will be Lawrence F. Percival, in his Sally XIII champion last season, the Hawk, owned by I. R. Edmunds; E. M. and J. M. Abbott's boat Falcon, Robert Amory's Leonore and Devereaux Barker's Hornet B.

The South Boston Yacht Club will get away its second race for the club trophies for members this afternoon. The regatta committee of the South Boston Y. C. is very fortunate in having the coast guard station in Dorchester Bay as a starting boat.

Inside Golf

One of the finest strokes in golf is the loose-wrist mashie pitch, or the plain wrist stroke. This stroke the golfer should forever dally with if he wishes to study golf and improve his play. The wrist stroke is the perfect golf stroke—in miniature. In the wrist stroke, which is a short swing made entirely with the wrists and arms, there is a total absence of body action. The player who will practice this small swing again and again, always observing the looseness of his wrists and how the wrists appear to swing the clubhead forward and through the ball, the body following after, will get a true conception of the major golf swing. The full swing is exactly the same as the wrist stroke with the mashie. The only difference is that the full swing requires longer in the making. By studying the one the player should with observation he able to "feel his way" to the other.

HARVARD MEETS BROWN THIS AFTERNOON

There will be two college baseball attractions in Greater Boston this afternoon with Harvard entertaining Brown on Soldiers Field and the Tufts Jumbos playing host to the crack Boston College nine on Tufts Oval, Medford.

In the last meeting of the latter two clubs, Tufts won from Boston College by a 3 to 2 score at Alumni Field, Newton. It was a great baseball game which gave Tufts lots of inspiration and pep, although it was a gift game on the part of the Maroon and Gold.

Tufts took advantage of all openings and gathered all its tallies on errors of judgment and in the playing of the Eagles, while the most drastic part of the B. C. defeat came when the Eagles failed to move about the paths with their usual speed.

There is no reason in the world why the boys from Newton can't take the measure of Tufts this afternoon. Franklin Shuman will do the hurling for the Tufts nine, having been very successful against Slattery's men in the last game, while Big Ed Mullowney will more than likely do the chucking for B. C.

Providence College will furnish the opposition to Yale this afternoon at New Haven. This will be a warm up for the Blue for their coming series with Harvard for the "Big Three" championship.

Ban Johnson Gives $25,000 to Build College Gymnasium

Marietta, O., June 12 (A.P.).—A gift of $25,000 for the building of a new gymnasium for Marietta College by Ban Johnson, president of the American League and former student at the school, was announced today.

Thousands to See the Altoona Classic

ALTOONA, Pa., June 12 (I.N.S.).—Thousands of motor speedway enthusiasts thronged the mountain city today for the annual 250-mile board track classic here this afternoon.

Skies were overcast several hours before the tiny racing cars were to face the starter's flag, but race officials had the assurance of the weather man that rain would not interfere.

With twenty-six drivers entered and track rules permitting but eighteen to start, the pilots who will compete for the $25,000 in prize money this afternoon will not be known until just before the start of the race.

Although the drivers have been at the track for several days, heavy winds prevented some from qualifying. It is understood that the eighteen pilots qualifying with the fastest time will be selected to start. The list of eligible starters:

ABE MITCHELL CAPTURES TARGET GOLF SUPREMACY

Moor Park, England, June 12.—Abe Mitchell won the Evening Standard's target golf tournament today with a total of 337 points and will take the major portion of the $5,000 prize money.

W. Mehlhorn of Chicago was the only American contender who was well up in the money. Mehlhorn finished sixth, with a score of 315 points. Walter Hagen was fairly well down, with a total of 307 points.

RED SOX OPEN SERIES WITH TIGERS TODAY

Detroit, Mich., June 12.—Losing more ground in their cellar journey when they dropped three out of four games to the Browns, the Red Sox arrived here today to continue their initial swing around the Western section of the circuit. Until a trade comes along to change the scenery the future is not very bright for the Sox.

The trade flurries which started in St. Louis when it was reported a deal was pending with the Browns failed to materialize and the Red Sox continue to own Ira Flagstead and Howard Ehmke as well as all other members of Lee Fohl's cast.

That a big deal will come up before the expiration of the time limit which is next Tuesday is almost a foregone conclusion. Just what will be swapped and what will be added as new material to the Fohl entry remains to be seen.

LOCAL SOCCER SEASON CLOSES

By BILL McAULEY

The Hub soccer eleven will take on a picked eleven from the Boston District League in an exhibition game at the Walpole street grounds this afternoon and a big crowd should be on hand at starting time, for although the season has officially closed the majority of the fans are still hungry for the old kicking game.

The Hub eleven will be the same as played mostly all season with the exceptions of McNair, a newcomer, who made his debut against Smith & Dover this week.

The only other game scheduled is bewteen the Winchester juniors and Abbots C. eleven for the championship of the Bay State League which will be played at Cooper st., Lynn, where a big crowd is expected as the elevens have battled twice already in an effort to decide the championship, both games ending in ties.

Another fine program is carded for the cricket fans today and with the weather more congenial for the white flannel game the various contests should be well patronized. In the Bay State League the St. Georges will have the fast Lawrence eleven as their opponents at Glendale Park, Everett, and this promises to be one of the best tilts of the day. Brockton is at home to Everett and United Shoe has Rockland as visitors at Beverly and both matches should provide some interesting sport.

In the Massachusetts league three games are carded at Franklin Field and another at North Brighton. The outstanding games of this league will be settled at the Dorchester pitch, the Athletics taking on the West India A and the Standards opposing the Wanderers. Both of these matches are sure to provide fast cricket as all four teams are fighting hard to take the lead in the circuit.

STARS MENACE MELROSE RUN RECORDS

By STED CHANDLER.

A large and enthusiastic number of track fans will converge upon the town of Melrose this afternoon, attracted by the Nonpareil quartet of distance runners—De Mar, Stenroos, Henigan, and Miles—which will start from scratch in the De Mar ten-mile run, the feature of the annual Spring games of Melrose.

Sted Chandler

Especial interest is attached to this race, which is only one of a comprehensive athletic program, because of the possibility of the record for ten miles being lowered.

De Mar, Stenroos, Miles and Henigan starting even in any race would be enough to draw the crowd; fans are particularly anxious to see all of the men cover the ten-mile course; they are anxious to see whatever manhandling of the marks these favorites may deem it fit to perpetrate.

These four, then, will start from scratch at Melrose today, and should provide a race well worth watching. It will begin either at 4:30 or 5 o'clock and will be run over a quarter-mile track, requiring 40 turns to complete the ten miles.

A time prize, valued at $100 is one of the awards to attract the runners. The favorite to win this is Smiling Jimmie Henigan whose penchant for winning ten-mile time prizes has developed into a habit.

The meet starts at 2:30 o'clock, opening with A. A. U. events and an Interscholastic relay program. The events include 100 yard dash, 440, 880, mile, high and broad jump, shot-put and pole vault. Athletes who will compete are Lloyd Hahn, George Lermond, Louis Welch, Hank Steinbrenner, Tony Plansky, Ray Robertson, Charles Sansone, George Kinnaly, Frank Burns, Tom Clausen, Tom Hearn, Clarence Dusseault, Peter Kirwin, Al Rogan, Erwin Beach, Zeus Wilczewski and John Lawlor.

ROYAL ASCOT ON ENGLISH RACE CARD NEXT WEEK

London, June 12 (A.P.).—The annual pageant of the Royal Ascot—one of the most brilliant turf meetings in the world—will be run next week. A dozen of the season's important races which will be run during the four days' meeting.

From June 15 to 18 inclusive the following events at Ascot Heath will attract public attention: Coventry Stakes, for two-year-olds; the Queen Mary Stakes, for two-year-old fillies; the Prince of Wales Stakes, the Coronation Stakes, the Gold Vase, the Gold Cup, the Ascot Stakes, the Royal Hunt Cup and the New Stakes.

WOMAN WILL REPRESENT BRITAIN IN BOAT RACE

Putney, Eng., June 12 (A.P.).—At a speed of about 33 miles an hour, Miss M. B. Carstairs, wet but happy, has won the right to represent Great Britain in the international one and one-half litre motorboat contest for the Duke of York's gold trophy. The races will be held from June 26 to June 30 on the Thames.

Miss Carstairs yesterday won the quilaifying race, which was six circuits over the University boat race course, from Chiswick to Putney, a total of 32 miles.

Bowser to Bid $30,000 For Title Mat Bout

By JACK CONWAY

PAUL BOWSER will today submit his final offer in an effort to bring the Strangler Lewis-Joe Malcewicz wrestling bout to Boston. Bowser has already equalled the $25,000 bids of Ed White of Chicago and Coney Island Stadium at New York.

A conference held in New York only went to prove that Boston, Chicago and New York are each anxious to be the scene of the outstanding wrestling bout of the season. It is expected that the matter will be decided one way or another within a few days.

Jack Conway

This writer knows Paul Bowser well enough to believe he will raise his $25,000 bid. Bowser has gained his success as a wrestling promoter by doing things in a big way. He won't permit a few thousand dollars to stand in the way of his landing the championship match. I would not be surprised to see Bowser offer $30,000 for the bout.

Bowser has already talked over the question of staging the bout at Braves Field. It is too big to go indoors, especially now that Paul will have to pay the wrestlers at least $30,000.

Ed White and the matchmaker for the Cooney Island Stadium may consider themselves major league promoters, but they will find that Bowser will go them one better when it comes to the final showdown on the title bout late today or tomorrow.

Our tip is that Lewis and Malcewicz will settle their differences in a finish bout at Braves Field. If Boston lands this match, it will be staged on July 1.

PETE STARMIENTO, Filipino featherweight, has been signed by the Cycle A. C. of Revere to battle Chick Suggs, New England featherweight champion, on July 12. The Cycle Club also has Babe Herman and Tod Morgan, world's junior lightweight champion, billed to mingle at the beach oval on June 21.

Young Stribling had agreed to box Jack Sharkey or Jim Maloney at Revere on July 5, but in view of his defeat at the hands of Paul Berlenbach the Georgian may decide to take a rest.

JOE GLICK, Brooklyn featherweight, has been installed a slight favorite in the betting for his ten-round bout with Honeyboy Finnegan of Dorchester which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at Braves Field on next Wednesday night. This is due to the fact Glick scored a rather decisive victory over Dan Carroll's sturdy battler in New York last December. Glick counted with a couple of knockdowns and was well out front when the final blow was delivered.

Finnegan is training at Martin Flaherty's camp at Wamesit and expects to be in the best condition of his career when he enters the ring with the Brooklyn sensation. Honeyboy figures he will erase the defeat he suffered at the hands of Glick and then continue his climb up the pugilistic heights.

WE asked Pa Stribling what he thought of Ray Neuman whom the Crosscup-Pishon Post had signed to battle Tiger Flowers at Braves Field on June 28.

"He's a tough fellow," said Stribling, Sr. "I had my boy boxing him in Atlanta and Neuman gave him a stiff argument. He's awkwardly clever, tough and a good puncher. I figure Flowers shrould outpoint him, but he will be obliged to fight at top speed for the full ten rounds in order to do so."

The Legion show has caught on as the fistic promoters say. The supporting card to the Flowers-Neuman mill has helped. Think of Sammy Fuller and Carl Tremaine in the ten-round semi-final and Red Chapman battling Al Corbett in another ten.

EDNA FORSELL
One of the most versatile of the Boston Swimming Association athletes, who is entered in the dashes, hurdles and relay race.

YANKS DEFEAT BRITISH PRO GOLFERS

By ROBERT HARLOW
Staff Correspondent

Moor Park, England, June 12—Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen today defeated Cyril Tolley and Abe Mitchell four up and two to go in an eighteen-hole professional and amateur match.

Both Hagen and Jones were playing superior golf and their team work [illegible]

W[illegible] Mitchell was carrying [illegible] of the load for the English team the Americans were [illegible] [illegible] together [illegible] [illegible] excellent as was evidenced by a fine parade of threes. The cards:

Jones, Hagen Out	4 4 4 3 3 3 4 4 3	3—32
Tolley Mitchell Out	4 4 3 4 4 5 4 4 4	4—36

The English pair tightened their game in the second nine but the American left no gates open to them.

The homeward cards follow:

Jones Hagen In	3 4 3 4 5 4 4	1—27
Tolley Mitchell In	3 4 3 4 4 4	5—27

Lynn Takes Firm Grip on Top Rail

The Lynn General Electric baseball club which is sitting pretty at the top of the Twilight League standing will attempt to beat South Boston twice in the same week when the Southie "Twi" outfit visits the Shoe City this afternoon.

The Lynnites have found most opponents soft picking and experts [illegible] ected them to win the flag for the first half of the season. Shea, the Peninsula district hurler, will make another bid for fame by offering his puzzling slants to the hard hitting league leaders.

There also is another league tilt at Quincy, where the snappy Fore River team stacks up against Dorchester again. The latest addition to Twi circles recently defeated the Dorchester outfit but the outcome of today's battle is apt to read a bit different.

Manager Kendrick has announced that Dominic Mulrennan will hurl for Dorchester while the pitching selection for Fore River is not certain. [illegible] Patterson has a new southpaw he intends to look over before he sends them into action.

THE KID -:- By TAD
He Falls for Hot Clothes

The Life of a Fighter, in Ten Chapters

CHAPTER V.

It was almost six months later before the Kid appeared [illegible] fight again. His mother was very proud of him, and his picture was in all the neighboring saloons.

The manager landed him a fight in one of the big clubs. He fought and won, and for his end received $500. The next week he won another, and then another. Money was beginning to come in in bundles now, and, of course, the Kid bought a few diamonds. He also bought a "hot" light-coat, a pair of light spats and a cane. Everybody knew him and he [illegible] be well-dressed.

He met swell fellows now, who smoked big cigars and gold tipped cigarettes, and occasionally the Kid took a pill. He drank ginger ale and soft drinks, because the rough stuff, as they called the booze, would hurt his speed. He had [illegible] more fights, and was matched for the championship. There were thousands of dollars in a go for the championship, and the Kid worked like a horse to get in shape. He had three sparring partners, a man to rub him, and a special training camp out of town.

He was a short ender in the betting on the night of the [illegible] but his friends backed him to the limit, betting every cent they could lay their hands on. He won.

The Kid, a champion of the world. He was wanted everywhere. Theatres wanted him, and different clubs bid for his services. His pictures were printed all over the country.

QUEEN STILL REIGNS

SUZANNE LENGLEN VICTORIOUS
The world champion woman tennis player easily defeated Mary K. Browne, America's representative, in the international hard courts tournament in Paris.

Suzanne Conquers Miss Browne, 6-1, 6-0

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, June 12.—Suzanne, the indomitable, [illegible] another victory today. The flashing French star, playing [illegible] most unfavorable conditions, defeated Miss Mary Browne of California in the finals of the international hard courts championship, 6-1, 6-0.

The American girl made a game fight, but was clearly outclassed. Suzanne, while easily superior in all departments of the game, was unable to give her usual demonstration of fleet-footed [illegible] [illegible] courts due to the wet ground and the rain which fell intermittently for a few minutes.

Lenglen's domination of the match was evident in the first set which saw her score a total of 31 points to the American's 15. The latter showed to advantage in the second game, which she won [illegible] after [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the French girl [illegible] before winning the game.

The score, first set:

Lenglen	4 3 4 3 4 4	4—26—6
Browne	2 5 2 6 0 1	2—18—1

The match was marked by a fine display of sporting instinct on the part of Miss Browne early in the play. When Mlle. Lenglen returned a ball close to the line and the linesman called it out, Miss Browne refused to accept the decision, declaring the ball was good and insisting that the point go to the French star.

Miss Browne caught Suzanne napping twice in the fourth game with deep [illegible] over the net, but the French girl was quick to win the points back again.

The American could make little or no progress against the well-placed shots of the French champion, who was resorting to her usual tactics of [illegible] her opponent from one side of the court to the other.

BUDGET A BIG HELP TO JUNE BRIDES

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK, No. 75

By MARTHA LEE

THE modern June bride can turn many of her problems over to the modern household accountant—Mr. Budget—who was practically unknown a generation ago.

To be sure, even grandmother may have felt that she "must put things down" in some form of account keeping. Old fashioned household accounting, however, was a pretty dry pastime. Someone has said that it was rather like writing epitaphs on dead money. That sort of household accounting looked backwards and led nowhere.

The modern budget looks forward. All the plans and purposes of the family are seen to depend on it for it is built around the family's future desires and hoped for attainments.

I do wish that I could have the privilege of sending every bride a budget form and could give her some little idea of how much spending by a plan will simplify her housekeeping.

The first decision of a young married couple should be just what they want to accomplish in say the next five years and how much money can be set aside to carry out these plans. Such careful consideration will prevent the experience of one couple who started out gaily on a $2,500 salary and in the last month of the year were almost reduced to a potato and tea diet to keep from going into debt.

How much worry would have been avoided had this couple first realized that Budget would teach them the science of seamanship in these new financial waters.

Don't start your married life drifting in financial waters that will get more and more frenzied. Budget will furnish you a compass and rudder and steer you safely into the harbor of prosperity. Your budget form is waiting for you and my very best personal assistance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. M. L. F. asks, "Can I afford to pay $600 or $700 for an automobile and where shall I take doctors and hospital bills from?" Her income is $3,500 a year (approximately $67.50 a week). In addition she has $300 a year interest on money invested besides 4 per cent interest on $1,000 in the savings bank. Is buying home through the co-operative bank and pays $37.25 a month, covering rent and taxes. Her other monthly expenses are, coal $5, clothing for children, four, five and seven years $10, husband's clothing $10, wife's clothing $10, lodge dues $1.05, husband's spending money, including carfare, lunches, smokes, $15; operating $4.50, groceries $35, general small household expenses $5, vacation club $1, Christmas club $4, miscellaneous $3.60, covering doctors' bills and new furnishings and savings, $13.60.

Asks if she should pay hospital bills out of dividends from investments, and if she buys an automobile, wants to know which allotment covers the money to run it with? Would like to make some small furniture purchases and also to hire woman to help with cleaning, but doesn't know where the money is to come from.

I think budgeting is easiest on a weekly basis. Your total income is really $73.60 weekly and you will not go astray if you follow a standard budget. This will allow you $14.72 a week for shelter, which includes the interest on your mortgage, repairs and taxes and fire insurance on the house also your husband's business carfares. Do not charge against shelter the payments against the principal of your mortgage. This should come out of your savings. On this first allotment you will no doubt have quite a considerable balance which I would recommend adding to your savings account.

This same standard budget will allow you $18.40 a week for food, covering your milk bill, ice and your husband's business lunches. Eleven dollars and four cents can be devoted to operating each week. Under this comes heat, light, laundry, telephone and all small household supplies under $1. Eleven dollars and four cents can also be devoted to clothing each week. As you at present are spending $30 a month for clothing you will have a balance here to add to personal. However remember that the clothing allotment covers the repairs and upkeep of the clothing as well as all materials purchased. A standard budget ordinarily allows $7.36 for savings, out

Are you drifting in the dangerous seas of frenzied finance? Budget will furnish rudder and compass and bring you safely into the Port of Prosperity.

How to Succeed in Keeping Outgo in Bounds of which come the payments against the principal of the mortgage.

Usually vacation and Christmas Club assessments are taken out of savings, but if you feel that they belong under personal (since gifts and vacations are paid from the personal fund), you can arrange your budget accordingly. A standard budget allows you $11.04 weekly for personal. From this come doctor's and dentists' bills, lodge, club and church dues, vacations, all amusements, new furniture and the expenses of operating a pleasure automobile.

I feel sure that you will get sufficient pleasure from an automobile to justify purchasing it from your savings. There seems to be sufficient balance under personal to take care of its upkeep, including garage rent.

Mrs. S. A. M. asks for a budget for $33 a week, three in family. As her expenses are average, the standard budget will solve her problem. This allows her $2.50 for savings, $6.50 for shelter, $9.50 for food, $5 for clothing, $5 for operating and $4.50 for personal.

Mrs. D. G. B. says her husband is going to allow her to handle the family finances for the first time in their married life, and she is anxious to prove a competent budgeter. Her income is $45 a week, including $5 paid by roomer.

Try savings $8, shelter $10, food $11, clothing $6, operating $5 and personal $5.

For Mrs. H. E. R. we have a $60 budget, which must cover $4 a week she is paying on a back bill and $3 on a washing machine. I would suggest, shelter $12, food $15, clothing $9, operating $9, including the payments on the washing machine, savings $6 and personal $9, covering the weekly amount paid on the back bill.

BE PATIENT TO YOUTH

THERE is profound wisdom in the words: "If youth but knew; if age but could!"

But youth cannot know what age knows. And when age has at last learned, it has not time nor strength to DO.

We older ones are inclined sometimes to be impatient with the young, whether the young one is a country or an individual. There must necessarily be a crudity to youth, just as to a green fruit, and it is certainly not to be blamed for it. The child is the blossom. Then comes the green-fruit stage which has "got to be lived through"—a delightful and at the same time troublous period, full of shocks and pitfalls. I love the young, with all their headlong hopes and passions, and have such sympathy with them that I am on the side of the culprits when I ought to be amongst the punishers! The hard thing is to keep the just measure—to understand both sides, to be indulgent, and yet to guide.

With young countries it is as with youth. America is a young country and has some of the follies of its youngness. Rumania is young as a nation, yet as a people, old. Sixty years ago Rumania was a vassal to Turkey. Under King Carol she achieved independence, under King Ferdinand, unity. The country has made enormous strides in a short time and when one is inclined to be impatient with her mistakes and crudities, or criticise her imperfections, one must keep that fact in mind.

All young things are apt to be naughty and indiscreet, to take the shadow for the substance, to rush for the showy side of things and to err in a knowledge of human nature.

But the young country, like the young human being, has also the charm of energy, faith and enthusiasm. Youth believes in fairies, in sudden realizations, in romance and in the goodness of things. Youth is generous. Youth delights in headlong flights, is impatient to get there at once, to jump hedges and ditches, to make a noise, to fight.

It is more difficult to ride an unbroken horse than a well-trained one, it is harder to remain in the saddle—but it is also more interesting and exciting to try!

Patience, a light hand, understanding, indulgence, but a watchful eye and never-off-your-guard, that is how to drive youth. Age KNOWS, but youth CAN DO. Each must be patient with the other.

Dr. Reed Describes New Methods of Ultra-Violet Ray Treatment

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU are constantly maintaining your health by being subjected to more or less of the so-called ultra-violet rays as they come from the sun.

Now, however, one of the newest forms of light treatment is ultra-violet radiation derived from artificial sunlight.

New uses for this form of treatment are being reported every day. Actinic rays—the ultra-violet rays—from the sun itself have been used in medicine from the earliest times and now that they can be produced artificially their utility is considerably extended.

The ultra-violet ray is invisible, but is more potent than any of the visible rays.

It is useful not only in skin disease but in all conditions of impaired vitality and lowered resistance.

It is known that these rays are absorbed by the blood, but it is not known how their energy is applied to the tissues.

They probably effect chemical changes in the blood. One of which is to raise its calcium content and concentrate inorganic phosphorous, both of which are essential to health.

Ultra-violet light is strongly antiseptic, that is, it destroys germs, particularly to the tubercle bacillus.

They also increase the number of white blood corpuscles, which are a defensive mechanism against germ infection.

Their effect in relieving pain is remarkable but little known and used. They also stimulate important glands and render vitamins more active.

The artificial rays it is claimed, are better than natural sunlight because they are not accompanied by the depressing invisible rays above the ultra-violet and below the red.

It is possible to administer a mathematically calculated dose of exactly the rays which are needed and this, it is claimed, cannot be done with sunlight, because of the incalculable variations in the atmosphere.

The action of the light on the skin is that of an antiseptic. Its value was first proved in the treatment of tuberculosis of the skin, or lupus.

When used with ordinary care it cannot inflict injury. It is of great benefit in anemia, rickets, surgical tuberculosis, general debility, convalescence, also in alopecia, chronic kidney disease and enlarged prostate.

It has pronounced rejuvenating properties and a marked influence on muscular agility, as reported by many observers.

It increases mental, as well as physical, activity.

The apparatus consists fundamentally of an arc. The electric current passes between two terminals on a bridge of white hot particles and produces a very intense illumination. It may be formed in the open air or in mercury vapor enclosed in a quartz tube. The terminals are of carbon, tungsten or iron, sometimes mixed with other elements.

One of the forms most used employs a pair of carbons in air and is very similar in construction to a cinematograph projector. Direct currents are better than alternating, as they form a crater in the positive carbon instead of a point on each carbon and the radiation from the crater is more intense. The radiation is increased if the positive carbon is rotated by a motor.

A convenient arrangement is two banks of three arcs each; the patient is placed stripped between the two banks at a distance of two feet from the light.

These technical details are given with the idea that you may bring them to the attention of your physician to the end that both he and you may know a fake apparatus of which the market threatens to be flooded.

The first application should last fifteen or twenty minutes and the time is increased gradually to half an hour.

It will undoubtedly come into general use by people of normal health as a pick-me-up, and that not only in Winter, but periodically throughout the year. No habit could be more beneficial as a health measure.

What Age Is Woman at Her Loveliest?

By Lucy Lowell

"WHAT age had you rather be?" is the question that I have been propounding to the women I have met lately.

A young business woman who is in her early twenties said that she had rather be exactly the age she is now. "I have had enough experience to teach me some sense and I am still young enough to make use of it," she declared.

The mother of two daughters said, "I think the sweetest age is twenty-seven, because then a married woman is usually the mother of little children, and that is the best time of life."

Another woman who is approaching forty said, "I am enjoying my life more right now than I ever did before; and my husband says that I am better looking than I have ever been."

Then along came a sweet girl graduate who exclaimed: "I wish I could stay seventeen." And then she added, "I have been satisfied with my age ever since I got to be sixteen. I was crazy to be sixteen. I knew I would be happy then, and I was, too."

Oh Youth! The glory and beauty and ignorance of it is amazing.

It was Fannie Heaslip Lea who wrote: "I'd Be Thirty Forever." "At thirty," she continued, "you will have been disillusioned often enough to know that the moon isn't made of green cheese . . . you've also, here and there, seen a dream come true — and you know there is such a thing as a fighting chance.

"You know that while love may be the greatest thing in the world, it—mercifully—isn't the only thing in the world. There's work and there's play and there are friends. And when you see something you want—oh, most awfully—you don't fling yourself all over it, thus attracting a crowd. You merely go quietly and ardently about attaching it.

"You deliberately choose your ways and walk along them with your eyes open. You stand upright on your own feet at thirty—if ever."

And then there are the peaceful Indian Summer days of a woman's life, when the stress and storm are over, and the character that she has been building up through all the strenuous years shines in her countenance.

It is then that her personality and her intelligent effort attract the blessings that she has so long wanted.

This matter of age is not as important as it used to be. There are so many interests to keep a woman young in heart and mind. But whatever her age, there is some advantage and some compensation in being just exactly that old.

What is woman's loveliest age? It all depends upon the woman herself.

Varicose Veins Reduced or Money Back, Say All Druggists

Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent. One application for instance stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications cause the eruptions to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. All druggists sell lots of it.

'THE RED LAMP,' FINE MYSTERY STORY

Absorbing Serial by the Author of 'The Bat' Full of Thrills

Professor William A. Porter becomes owner of Twin Hollows, a country and shore estate of his deceased uncle, Horace Porter. Porter lives with his wife, Jane, and niece, Edith, at the university in which he teaches. Jane manifests every evidence of mediumistic ability. She "sees" many things that are in explicable. The Professor determines to occupy the mansion left by his uncle. It has a neighborhood reputation of being haunted. Jane objects to living in the house and compromises in an agreement to live in the Lodge. Warren Halliday, sweetheart of Edith, comes to Twin Hollows and lives in the boathouse.

Then begin a series of the most marvelous ghostly happenings. The Professor believes that his uncle may have been murdered. Other crimes committed are blamed by the neighborhood on the ghost inhabitants of the Twin Hollow mansion. Circumstances entangle the Professor in an apparent indication of guilt. The Red Lamp figures in these manifestations.

Detective Benchley enters the case. He evidently believes the Professor responsible for the mysterious crimes.

The Professor rents the house to a mysterious Mr. Bethel, who has a secretary named Gordon. Dr. Hayward, town physician, is added to the number who suspect Porter. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone call on the Porters. Mrs. Livingstone reveals mysterious happenings in Uncle Horace's house.

Mr. Bethel and his secretary arrive. Bethel and the professor discuss the mysterious crimes that are stirring the village.

Carroway, guard, slain. Body found in bay, held down by Dr. Hayward's anchor. Doctor acts queerly. Suspicion is shifting.

CHAPTER XVII

July 19th.

A SUDDEN and terrifying storm outside. Above the howling of the wind I can hear the surf beating against the shore. Halliday reports over the telephone, that the [illegible] in danger and that the run [illegible] has broken loose. But there is nothing to do. I have just been out, and I do not propose to be soaked again.

(Note: The approach of the storm had made Jane very nervous, and I had driven in to Doctor Hayward's for a sleeping medicine for her.)

Jock is as bad as Jane, and should have a narcotic also! He is moving uneasily from place to place, now and then emitting a dismal howl, and Clara is sitting forlornly at the foot of the staircase.

It is indeed a night for dark deeds. And for dark thoughts. . . .

I wonder if I have any justification for my suspicions? Why should Hayward, preparing to go out on a case, start me along a new and probably unjustified line of thought? Surely, of all men in the world, he has the best right to carry ether. I must be careful not to do as Greenough has done, allow my necessity for finding the guilty man to run away with my judgment.

And yet, in spite of myself I can not help feeling that Hayward fulfills many of the requirements. He alone, of all the people hereabout, is free to move about the country at night without suspicion. He knew Uncle Horace "as well as anybody." He is—and God forgive me if I am wrong—enough of a sailor to know and use the half-hitch.

There are other points, also. He is about my age, if anything older, but he is a muscular man. And he is, like all general practitioners in the country, by way of being a surgeon also. He would know how to find the jugular vein of a sheep.

Is Professor Mad?

"I have re-read this. Possibly Greenough is right after all, and I am a trifle mad."

"In all earnestness I appeal to you to consider the enormity of the idea," wrote poor old Horace. The murder of Carroway cannot come under the strictures of that letter; it was done as a matter of protection.

Nearest of all to the possibilities suggested by the letter comes the attack on Halliday, and if the sheep-killer did that, why not have put his devilish symbol on the car during that silent ride of a mile before he prepared to strike?

Why have crept in later and done it?

But here again—the doctor had access to the car, after Greenough had examined it. He went in alone, according to Clara, and was there some time.

Was it, then, the doctor's typewriter which wrote the cipher over which Halliday has been puzzling? The Gel/Tr, K. 28?

July 20th.

Maggie Morrison disappeared last night; disappeared as completely as though she had been wiped from the face of the earth by the storm.

Livingstone telephoned me the facts at 7 this morning, and Halliday and I took the car and went over. We have been out with the searching party all day, but without result.

At luncheon young Gordon joined us, sent by Mr. Bethel, who had not heard the news until that hour. It was all we three could do to keep Edith from starting out also, but it was not work for a woman.

Tonight the search is still going on. Starr has sworn in more deputies, and the entire countryside is aroused.

Jane has been ill all day, and has kept her bed.

July 21st

No trace of the unfortunate girl tonight, and all hope of finding her alive is slowly being abandoned. . . .

I can now record such facts as we know, relative to the mystery.

The girl went in to Oakville yesterday to do some shopping, and remained for dinner with Thomas and his wife. In spite of Thomas' prophecy of a storm she insisted on staying over for a moving picture, and it was therefore ten-thirty when, alone in the farm truck, she started out of town.

Nothing more is known of her movements, save that she got as far as the Hilburn Road, about two hundred yards beyond the Livingstones' gate. The truck was found there yesterday morning at daylight by an early laborer on the Morrison farm, who, however, thought that she had abandoned it there during the storm the night before, and neglected to report it.

At the farm house itself there was no uneasiness, as the family supposed the girl had remained in town. But when the hour came for her to start out with her milk deliveries, and she had not arrived, inquiries were set on foot.

The truck shows no signs of any struggle, and that robbery was not the motive of whatever has happened is shown by the fact that the missing girl's pocketbook was found behind the seat of the truck, where she usually placed it.

Greenough and the sheriff were on the ground when we got there, as well as a small knot of country folk, kept at a distance by a deputy or two and already a small posse hastily recruited was beating the wood nearby. Such clews as there may have been, however, had been obliterated by the storm. There is no trace of the dreaded symbol in chalk.

In the Lighthouse

Halliday has reconstructed the story in view of his own experience.

"The fellow was waiting," he said "and hailed her, as he hailed me. He knew nobody would pass a man caught out in a storm like that. He got in, and closed the storm curtains and of course she hadn't a chance in the world."

He does not therefore agree with the general conviction, that we are dealing with a sexual crime. And that word "general" does not include all of the population; there are many, I understand, among the more ignorant who have put together the almost uncanny violence of the elements that night, a night indeed for demons, and the complete disappearance of the unfortunate girl, and are building out of it and their own superstitious fears a theory that the girl's body will never be found, that she has been, indeed, spirited away.

It has its elements of strangeness at that. Possibly five hundred men and boys have been searching steadily since yesterday morning; the back country, where it happened, is fairly open; the sea, with its salt marshes both of which would give unlimited opportunity for concealment, is fully six miles by road from where the truck was found. . . .

Much talk is going around as to a story from the light-house on the extreme tip of Robinson's Point today. As is to be expected, the superstitious are making considerable capital out of it. And I myself am not disposed to dismiss it without considerable thought.

The story is as follows:

On the night of the tragedy, a flying night bird of some sort broke one of those windows of the lighthouse which protect the light itself. The keeper and the second keeper repaired it as best they could, but the terrific gusts of the wind made them uneasy, and they remained on watch.

(Note: In light-houses of a certain type there is a small aperture, running down through the successive floors of the building, and through which, as the light revolves, the weights of the clock-work mechanism of the lamp slowly descend.

It should also be said that the Robinson Point light-house is a red flash, timed ten seconds.)

They sat, high in the air, in the room just beneath the light, now and then glancing up to see that all was well. The storm increased in violence, and as the sea came up the surf beat on the rocks below with a crashing only equalled by the thunder itself. As is usual in the high tide of the full moon, the low portion of the point to landward, and the keeper's houses, the engine shed, boathouse and oil storage tank were soon cut off from the mainland by a strip of angry ocean.

Nevertheless, they were comfortable enough, and the under-keeper had actually fallen asleep, at 11 o'clock when there came a sudden lull in the storm.

And in that pause, Ward, the light-keeper, heard something below in the tower. He touched his assistant on the shoulder and he sat up. Both of them distinctly heard footsteps on the lowest flight of stairs, five floors below.

What mysterious person, who walked and disappeared at will, frightened the light keepers? Read Monday's installment of this weird story.

Halliday reconstructs the tragedy of Maggie Morrison. He says: "The fellow was waiting and hailed her as he hailed me. He got in and of course she hadn't a chance in the world."

'From Boston to Broadway,' George M. Cohan

BEGIN this narrative now. In the preceding instalments Mr. Cohan tells of his boyhood as an actor up to the age of fourteen, at which time he decided he was through with one-tank towns and was ready for New York. And New York was ready for him. The first bomb to explode his imagined theory that he was now "made" was the unwelcome news that he would open the show.

CHAPTER XI

IF the theatre building had caved in it couldn't have buried me any deeper than I was right then. Josie was "spotted" fourth, mother and dad sixth. I was to "open" the show. Dad stood in the centre of the room, waiting for the explosion. It came, with a bang.

"They can't do this to me. I won't be disgraced by these guys. I'd rather be a tramp in the gutter than stand for this." They heard me hollering throughout the entire building. I meant that they should.

"Now don't take on like that, son. Remember the promise you just made." Dad tried to make this sound like a command, but there was a note of pity in his voice, just the same.

"What do they think I am around here—a Patsy Bolivar?" I yelled.

Mother and Josie came running into the room and tried to console me, but I tore up and down like a madman, calling Keith and Albee everything on the calendar. Dad, mother and Josie stood by, watching this performance with both fear and sympathy registered on their faces. For several minutes I raved and ranted, and finally threw myself on top of a trunk and wept bitter tears.

"Please don't take it so to heart, son." My mother was having a little cry herself as she said this to me.

"What'll the gang in Buffalo think when they hear about this?" I bellowed as the family gathered about me.

"If George feels that way about it, let's not play the engagement at all. Let's all quit and be done with it." This was Josie's suggestion.

"That satisfies me," put in dad. "If your mother's agreeable," and he looked in her direction for the decision.

"Perhaps that would be the easiest way out of it," she said, and began to bathe my forehead with witch hazel.

At this point the call boy shouted through the hall: "Curtain up in ten minutes. Everybody dressed, please!" I jumped from the trunk.

"I'll go through with it," I hollered as I started tearing off my street clothes. "I'll go through with it and make them all ashamed of themselves. Mark my words, before the week is over I'll be in the middle of this bill. See if I won't. I'll go out there and knock that audience into a cocked hat; that's what I'll do. I'll dance like I never danced in all my life. I'll turn this defeat into victory" (a line from one of the plays I had written). I raised my right hand above my head and pointed to the ceiling as I shouted this.

"They can't discourage or dis[illegible] me—no, siree. I [illegible] licked. I'll show this New York [illegible] a few things they've never seen before. Oh, I'll [illegible] I'll open the show [illegible] terically, "and [illegible] that follow me [illegible] I [illegible] top of my [illegible] on the [illegible] Josie ran [illegible] the best [illegible] the hurried [illegible] city [illegible] makeup, grabbed [illegible] back box, threw it over my shoulder and made for the [illegible]. When I got there I turned and [illegible] a parting threat at my father. "I'll get even with Keith and Albee, see if I don't." And I rushed to the stage.

"Is your act very [illegible]," a stage hand inquired as I stood [illegible] first entrance, waiting for the [illegible] to play the people into their seats.

"What do you mean, is my act very noisy?"

I felt that I was being "kidded" and half realized that it was because of the exhibition of temper I had displayed at the music rehearsal.

"Well, I just want to put you wise," he went on. "Those people out front have probably been up all night and they're here to get a good sleep, so if there's any noisy stuff in your act, I'd advise you to cut it out, because if you wake them up they'll hiss you."

He said that in a very confidential way, and then walked away whistling, "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon," which was the [illegible] gun in his hand.

"Here you are, kid," he said as he offered the weapon to me. "Stick that in your [illegible] and if that piano player doesn't get your tempos right shoot him dead before you leave the stage."

"[illegible] lay off that [illegible]. What are you [illegible] get him nervous [illegible] fright [illegible]." The stage manager said this as he came [illegible] the crew [illegible] said [illegible] there and shoot that bird, Augustin Daly that you're just as good a performer as he heard you were."

"Augustin Daly? Is he out front?" I asked, half believing it was true.

"Sure, he's out front. He's standing up in the rear, disguised as a policeman. He sent word "back stage" not to let you know, but I'm tipping you off because I've taken a great liking to you."

It suddenly dawned on me that he was about as sincere as the others.

The Making of a Husband, By Ann Lisle

I HAD thought that Nick and Jeanie were well rid of each other and were delighted at the clean break in their friendship. He dreaded her thinking she had to stand by—she dreaded having to do it. At least that was what each of them had indicated in their period of great stress when the injury to Nick's hand had threatened to cripple him for life instead of for a limited period of time.

And there they were about to meet. I had been the means of their coming together. If I hadn't taken this particular road and driven at a certain rate of speed, we wouldn't be here—I broke in on my own ruminations with a brisk:

"Do you really want to stop here for tea?"

"Why not? I said I did. I'm not a woman to change my mind every two seconds," was Nick's amused reply.

"I thought perhaps we could find a nicer place."

"I saw the blue coupe coming down the side road before I suggested turning in here," Nick said, calmly putting his cards on the table.

"Oh!" was all I ventured, as I parked the car on the other side of the place from that occupied by the blue coupe.

But as we came up the farmhouse steps to the big piazza sun parlor which had been turned into a tearoom, the first person we encountered was Jeanie. The companion who sat with her at the little yellow wooden table with its black cloth cover was none other than Lucie Tremaine, now Mrs. Matt Hawley. Something in my brain swam at the sight of the two of them.

A cool nod from Jeanie was our greeting. Lucie waved a nonchalant hand. Nicholas Perry drew out my chair, told me to order what I wanted and then strolled over to greet Jeanie. I expected to be left alone for fifteen or twenty minutes, and fumed—not at the thought of being deserted—but of being helpless to prevent the resumption of friendly relations between Jeanie and her erstwhile cavalier. But Nicholas Perry came back to our table before the waitress had arrived to take our order.

"Was she as cool as all that?" I asked with more relief than malice.

"Are you as glad as all that?" he replied, nothing daunted.

Before I could answer the waitress came, delightful and quaint in her checked yellow gingham dress with its tiny black apron. Nicholas Perry ordered a lavish tea of sandwiches and cookies and chocolate, and added jovially to the waitress:

"Bring whatever a man with a couple of bandaged hands can most easily manage, and whatever else there is the lady will like."

Then he deftly took out a cigarette, inserted it in the holder and began to smoke with zest.

"Your hands get better every day," I said with a sense of great joy that his big artistic talent shouldn't be wasted.

"And that relieves you of more and more responsibility," he replied thoughtfully.

"Why should I feel responsible?" I disclaimed.

"Because I was almost lost to the world as a painter through my ill-advised devotion to your husband's lovely sister," he replied nonchalantly.

"What have I to do with that?" I asked thoughtlessly.

"You feel a family obligation to stand by—since she didn't," he answered with continuing carelessness, but with an evident note of conviction in his voice. "You are one of those people whose motto would be 'Noblesse Oblige' even if they could not understand a word of French—or read or write English!"

"I don't understand—"

"You don't understand yourself," Nicholas Perry said curtly. "You think you don't like me or approve of me. But you let your husband go in cahoots with me on this car because you feel under an obligation to make up to me for Jeanie's sudden defection just when I needed most to have her prove that what she had felt for me was honest affection and friendship—not guilty infatuation."

Nicholas Perry sat back and waited for me to answer. His manner was triumphant, challenging and completely self-satisfied. I felt something brewing, something I wanted to avert. But what could I say? What was there to do?

Before I could affirm or deny Nicholas Perry's assertion that I feel called on to make up to him for Jeanie's defection just when he was injured in her service, she and Lucie Tremaine Hawley arose and crossed the piazza tearoom on their way out.

Something in Lucie's amused and sophisticated smile made me feel on the defensive.

"Where are you racing so fast?" I asked banally but with a note of challenge in my voice. "Haven't you time to stop and say hello to your old neighbor, Lucie?"

Lucie halted and Jeanie stopped, too, though with ill grace as she said:

"Lucie's rehearsing in her husband's new revue. I'm driving her to town and she and Matt Hawley and Pat and I are dining together."

"So as chauffeur of the party you're eager to be off," I said. "I know how you feel. Ever since Jim and Nick got a car together I've had the chauffeur-complex, too."

I have never before used Mr. Perry's first name in speaking of or to him. Above all, I haven't even called him by the abbreviated and chummy title "Nick" in talking of him to Jim. So it didn't surprise me to see Jeanie start as she asked:

"Since when are you folks so neighborly?"

"Sit down and I'll tell you all about it," I replied. "I hate to see Nick standing while you two girls force him to a show of his best table manners."

Lucie laughed lightly as she said:

"You're a great one to whet curiosity, Anne. I can see that Jeanie is just dying to know all about it. But I'm not going to risk making Matt angry for all the neighborhood gossip there is. Come on, Jeanie, we've got to vamoose."

"I suppose we do," Jeannie said regretfully.

It was easy to see that she was fairly on tiptoe to know more about the sudden intimacy between Jim and Nick Perry. I could imagine her thinking over the fact that Jim had vastly disapproved of Nick in terms of his friendship for her—Jim's sister.

CHILDREN'S NURSE RESUMES HER DUTIES

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Stewart, 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. Pietsch, Box 397, Lancaster, Pa.

Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., from grateful women who say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me whether the following outfit is correct for a bride to wear at a wedding in her home at 4:30. White circular dress with long sleeves and no gloves, although I am wearing a veil. Or, is it necessary to wear gloves when a veil is worn? On the other hand, if a sleeveless dress is worn are gloves (either long or short) essential?

L.

THE choice of whether or not the bride wears gloves rests with her and it is her taste that decides it. The idea is that, if her dress is formal and for its harmony demands gloves, then she should wear them.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married and am having one bridesmaid and one maid of honor. They are wearing long sleeved georgette dresses as it is an afternoon wedding, the gentlemen wearing cutaways. The question has come up as to whether or not they should wear gloves. I am wearing white kid gloves. Will you please settle this for us?

M. E. D.

THIS question as to the wearing of gloves is one that is settled entirely by the personal choice and taste of the bride. The best dressed brides, I think, do, as you say that you are doing, wear gloves. But although the bridesmaids may wear gloves if the bride wishes, they usually do not wear them. With the long-sleeved dresses, I should advise you not to have them wear gloves.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS DAILY INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

WE had just built an artificial lake on my farm out in the country to use as a swimming pool in the Summer for Bobby and for a skating rink in Winter, and after it was all finished Bobby said he thought it looked kind of lonely, and that some nice white ducks swimming around would make it look very much more homelike and friendly.

"That's a capital idea," I exclaimed, "and while we're at it we might as well raise our own ducks. What do you think, Bobby?"

"Where are you going to buy the ducks, Foxy Grandpa?" asked the boy.

"We won't have to buy ducks at all," I replied. "I'll just go to town, buy a setting of duck eggs and put them under Speckle."

"Will Speckle hatch duck eggs?" inquired Bobby.

"Sure as you're alive," I replied. "Speckle's the best setter we have."

So to town I went, bought a dozen fine, big duck eggs, brought them home, and when I put them in Speckle's nest she cackled with joy and settled right down to keep those eggs warm and hatch out what she thought would be a fine, big family of baby chicks.

The weeks went by and one morning Bobby came running to me and said:

"Speckle's ducks are hatched. Come out to see them."

They were dear little babies, and it was no time at all until one day they waddled off down to the lake with Speckle. Then right there before her very eyes they dived into the water and started off for a swim.

Poor Speckle was desperate—she was almost frantic. She ran up and down the bank and called to them, but her babies paid no attention to her. They swam around like the ducks they were and only came ashore when they felt like it.

However, Speckle got used to this because her children insisted upon going in swimming several times a day and she would wait patiently by the bank until they came back to her.

"How about some more ducks?" asked Bobby when Speckle had successfully raised her brood.

"Just the thing," I replied, and again I went to town for another setting of ducks eggs.

Speckle conscientiously raised six families of ducks and Bobby was right when he said that it was nice to see our little lake so lively.

It was time for Speckle to set again now, and since we had plenty of ducks I thought I would let her set on her own eggs and hatch out a proper family.

So Speckle started out again to set, only this time it was to be her own kind of babies which would hatch out.

She hatched them all, and what dear little fluffy balls they were! She raised them too, but something which happened might have been very serious if Bobby and I hadn't happened down by the lake on a certain morning.

There was Speckle with her brood. She led them right down to the water's edge as she had led her other families; and when her babies didn't jump right into the water, she was the most surprised and confused hen you ever saw. She couldn't understand it. So what did Speckle do but push her whole family right into the water, and if Bobby and I hadn't grabbed them and dragged them out, every one of her chicks would have been drowned!

"We'd better let her set on duck's eggs after this," I laughed, putting the last bedraggled little chick on the ground beside her."

THE WEDDING PLEDGE

A Dramatic Recitation Every Temperance Worker Should Know by Heart

"I HAD SWORN TO BE A BACHELOR, SHE HAD SWORN TO BE A MAID."

Brother of the bride, who turned out to be practically worthless, due, no doubt, to the demon rum.

Editor's Note—Phoebe, the bride, is addressing the roysterous wedding guests, who have been crying, "Pledge with wine! Pledge with wine!" Now go on with the recital—

There was a hush in that princely parlor, broken only by what seemed a smothered sob from some manly bosom.

The bride stood yet upright, with quivering lip, and tears pendant upon her eyelashes.

Her shapely arms, outstretched, still held the glass in which the wine danced against the crystal.

A convulsive shudder rippled through her body.

A groan ran through the assembly.

The bridegroom hid his face in his hands and was weeping.

"My own twin brother," she stammered, "sleeps today in some gutter—a victim of the demon rum.

"Father!" she exclaimed, turning suddenly while tears rained down her pale cheeks. "Father, must drink this poison wedding pledge?"

The form of the old judge was convulsed with agony. He raised his head, but in a smothered voice he faltered—

"No, no, my child, no——"

The wedding guests, one and all joined in spontaneous but polite applause, clapping hands and waving handkerchiefs, but the—

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A DETROIT man has just gone into a new kind of business. He's piling up a fortune breaking in other people's shoes for them.

HE rents you his feet at fifty cents an hour.

IT'S wonderful to think that you can now get a chauffeur for your shoes.

WOMEN are buying their slippers tight and letting this guy get their corns for them.

* * *

IT'S nice to be able to order your bunions on deferred payments.

WHY have sore feet when you can sub-let your callouses?

THIS fellow will walk around in your shoes all day for five bucks.

BUT if you just want him to stand in them it's a little cheaper.

THE minute he starts running it costs you money. He gets seventy-five cents a mile.

HIGH heeled shoes are ten cents extra.

HE never breaks in any shoes on Sunday. He likes to take this day off and go hiking.

HE hates to spend the week-end in strange shoes.

SOME times he rents out one foot and saves the other for himself.

A MAN who walks for other people all week has a right to reserve half of his feet on Sunday.

HE'S making a lot of money, but his rates are peculiar. While Oxfords should be cheaper, low shoes are higher.

DAILY SHORT STORY -:- -:- -:-

MEN AND MONEY

By Louise Peple Armstrong

DOLLY WINSTON was serving tea to several of her friends on Saturday afternoon. The conversation had turned on men and money, and Clara Whittaker, a tall, dark girl of the willowy type, had dropped out of the discussion for quite a while before the other three girls noted her silence. There was a flush upon her face, a tense look in her black eyes.

"Well, I think," Alice Evans was saying, emphatically, "that any girl who marries for love alone is a little fool. In these days and times when one knows the cost of living, why, one is stepping into slavery in marrying a poor man. When I marry, it will be for love, of course, but there's got to be something substantial back of it. Undying affection doesn't pay the rent and keep you on friendly terms with the butcher!"

"Billy and I have been wed three years," said Maude Owen. "I'm glad to know we're fixed well enough to give Junior every advantage. It's not right to bring a child into the world poverty-stricken."

"Well' Clara," asked Dolly, "what do you think, dear? Do you agree with these sophisticated materialists?"

"I'm afraid I'm being forced into it," answered Clara with a wry smile. "Yet I always hated to think about money. It seems so, well, crass and low-minded. Imagine a man proposing, and a girl saying, "Well, I admit I love you enough to take you, but I'll look you up in Bradstreet's before I say anything definite."

They all laughed.

"Perhaps," continued Clara soberly, "it is because I never have had much money that it has not been so significant to me, so essential."

"You've worked in an office, made a good living, and always been independent, Clara," said Alice Evans. "There's a difference."

"Yes," answered the girl, "and because in the business world I have heard so much about money, seen all men judged and weighed according to their financial standing, I have a distaste for having such matters brought into my personal life. I've seen men of real ability lose out because they were poor, and men of lesser worth win because they were born with the proverbial golden spoon in their mouths. I should judge a man for what he really is rather than what circumstances have made him. And yet, as you say, sentiments wouldn't pay the rent."

"Tom," asked Dolly thoughtfully that night as she sat under the living room lamp with a bit of embroidery, "what do you think of James Carroll, as a man?"

Tom rattled his paper and snorted. "Tailor's dummy," he answered briefly.

"Isn't he pretty well fixed, though, financially I mean?"

"Sure, his old man left him quite a pile. Clipping coupons semi-annually will be the only wear and tear on his brain I know of. Little shrimp. Plays a rotten game, and talks enough to make one want to strangle him!"

"Well," pursued Dolly thoughtfully, "what do you think of Jeff Adams, Tom?"

"Oh, Jeff's a pretty good chap. Tough luck he's had though. Plodding along for years in the bank, and the first chance of promotion that comes when Will Stinton resigns as cashier; old man Bailey, the president, runs in his son right over Jeff's head. Everyone thought Jeff would get the place. He should have had it!"

"Maybe," said Dolly wisely, "it was hard. But you can't keep a good man down forever, Tom!"

"Jeff's a plodder," Tom said, "that's what his trouble is. Nobody to spur him on. If he'd taken a stand for that place he'd have gotten it. The whole board was for him, with the exception of old Bailey."

Dolly thoughtfully outlined a rose.

"Tom, you're right," she told him finally. "He needs somebody back of him with a little aggressiveness. And I don't know anybody with more of it than Clara Whittaker!"

Tom Winston put up his paper and stared into his wife's blue eyes.

"Meddlers," he stated significantly, "particularly feminine meddlers, sometimes get themselves into trouble!"

"That's all right," retorted Dolly, "it won't be meddling—as you say, Jeff's in need of someone to spur him on—just give him a shove in the right direction."

A week later Dolly drove her coupe up to the front of the bank building. It was lunch time, and Jeff Adams, the head bookkeeper, was just stepping out of the doorway.

"Oh, Jeff," she cried. "I wanted to cash a check, and now it's so late they've locked up the money!"

"Sorry, Dolly, you should be a little more punctual," Jeff told her with a smile upon his lean, clear-cut face.

"I'm hungry," announced the brazen girl, "and I haven't a cent!"

"Then you lunch with me, young lady!" and he helped her out of the car with an insistent hand.

They sat in the tea-room, Dolly had chosen because of its solitude at the hour, crisp little salads before them—of which Jeff, accustomed to a man-sized lunch, gazed ruefully.

"I do hope," said Dolly after her first mouthful, "that Clara's affair with Jimmy Carroll will not drag through the entire Summer. I never did like Fall weddings."

Jeff choked on his food.

"I don't believe," continued Dolly thoughtfully, "she really cares for him. I think her family have talked her into it on account of his money. Well, I suppose that does make up for lack of real romance. I hope she'll be happy with him. Poor child, if someone who really loved her would only stand by her!"

"Stand by her?" echoed Jeff, his face turning crimson under Dolly's serene gaze.

"Yes," said Dolly. "I always thought you loved her, Jeff! But if you did, you wouldn't be sitting back twiddling your thumbs while Carroll takes her away from you! But then she'll have plenty of money to spend, and maybe she'll be better off than married to a poor man."

"I did not think," said Jeff huskily, "that you could be so — so despicable as to think of her marrying Jimmy Carroll because of his money! They say all women are mercenary, and I believe it's true! That is, all but Clara!" he amended.

Dolly arose with a smile.

"Thanks for the lunch, Jeff. I must fly. Clara will be out to supper. Drop around about eight—I haven't asked Carroll!"

Jeff gasped, then grew thoughtful, and at last grinned after her retreating figure.

At half past twelve, when the moon had set, Clara Whittaker closed the Winston's door softly as the whirr and rattle of Jeff Adam's car announced his belated departure.

"Gosh, he's long enough leaving," grumbled Tom Winston sleepily from his bed. But Dolly, his wife, was half way down the stairs as he was speaking, throwing her dressing gown about her as she ran. Several minutes later she returned. She switched on the rose light by the bed-table, sat down on her own bed and grinned at her sleepy husband with flushed face and starry eyes.

"Oh, Tom!" she cried excitedly, "he has asked her! And they'll be married next month! And she's not going to let him spend any money for a ring, she says it's foolishness. And old Bailey's son is leaving the bank in a week, and Jeff's to have the place as cashier after all! The board wasn't satisfied with the boy—and everything is lovely!"

Tom sat up in bed and nodded eagerly. "I knew," he said impressively, "that all Jeff needed was a shove in the right direction. Don't you remember my telling you—"

"Oh you!" cried Dolly with a giggle, and she switched off the light.

Success by the Yard

The number of yards of fabrics produced by the American Woolen Company each year determines to a large extent the great value that each yard represents; for through large-scale production are effected economies that lower costs, thus placing good clothing within the reach of everyone.

Demand American Woolen Company's fabrics for custom-made and ready-to-wear garments.

CHANGE IN GAS INDUSTRY IS LOOKED FOR

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Dana Barnum

President Dana Barnum of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. looks for important changes in the gas industry. Many people have had the idea that the sale of gas has been diminishing, owing to the inroads of electricity, but previously in this column we have cited figures to show that they were wrong.

• • •

After citing the facts regarding new processes for producing gas, etc., President Barnum says: "The above factors are important, especially when we consider possibilities of sale of gas in large quantities for fuel, such as building heating, industrial operations, such as heat treating, baking, brick-making and other manufacturing processes. Sales of gas as universal domestic and industrial fuel will undoubtedly make a profound change in our business."

• • •

Has the stock market reached its peak on the recovery? Today we have the following Boston Stock Exchange membership opinion:

• • •

Charles A. Phelan & Company—Commitments in the market at present levels are in many cases to be considered as carrying more than the normal amount of risk.

• • •

Paul Johnson & Co.—Aside from some oils and rails, we would not care to predict upward movements from this level for some time.

• • •

Clark, Childs & Co.—The upward movement of recent weeks is not mystifying, nor does it prove that opinions to the effect that the business outlook does not favor an advancing market are in error. Assuming that a liquidating movement began in February, the current recovery has been a normal incident and is comparable to similar ones in past years which have taken place while nothing very new or striking one way or the other developed in general business. At this writing it has progressed approximately as far as a normal secondary movement should and participation would seem to involve greater than usual risk.

• • •

Hayden, Stone & Co.—Business has continued in better volume than had been expected, and there is no basis for pessimism for the balance of the year. It would seem that one would be justified in taking an optimistic view regarding special issues showing high earnings in proportion to price, or with distinct promise for the future, but that it is hardly a situation where one can expect any large uplift from this already high level.

TODAY

would amount to $45,000, which makes the "glory" of being Senator worth three-quarters of a million above the salary.

IN MAY, 420,000 automobiles were manufactured; in April, 455,000. An automobile publication says Henry Ford "is expected to do something drastic" because of the increasing competition in General Motors. The Ford way is usually to reduce prices, and Ford hasn't yet started cutting on his high-priced car. If some fine day he should cut $2,500 from the price of the Lincoln and put it into quantity production, he would interest all automobile men, Wall Street men also.

MIND RULES the body. Your Christian Science friend will prove it for you. And fear, too often, rules the mind, as the news proves daily. In Berne, where they have big bear pits, a small boy fell in and was mauled to death. Another boy witnessed the dreadful sight and went mad that same night.

IN A BIG New York public school yesterday a small boy, thinking that excitement might provide a holiday, shouted "Black Hand," saying he had seen masked men. Many children were hurt in the panic. Frank Olivesi, twelve years old, who started the panic, is spending his holiday in jail.

The most important lesson of life is control of fear, and a majority of us die without learning the lesson. A few, fortunate, live without knowing what fear is—men like Crillon, La Hire, Diguesclin, for instance, all of whom happen to be Frenchmen.

GREAT BRITAIN accuses the Bolsheviki of sending cash, $2,000,000 in one lump, to help the British coal strike.

Russia, not bashful, will reply: "Certainly. We call this a workmen's government, so we help labor, as capitalist governments help capital."

The British proceed slowly and wisely in such matters. We should be terribly excited if Russia sent millions to American strikers.

NORTHWESTERN University in Chicago builds an educational skyscraper fourteen stories high. Universities, rising toward the clouds instead of spreading over the ground, will become popular in great cities.

In the next century, if not in this, students will fly to the roofs of universities, as an eagle flies to its perch, study all day and fly home in the evening. Real estate is expensive. The upper air costs nothing and is good for the lungs.

GREAT BRITAIN buys 33 per cent. of her apples here. The average Englishman eats 100 apples a year. But we sell to Britain only one orange in a hundred against thirty-eight apples in a hundred.

Our orange growers ought to find some way to compete, by cheap water freight, even with nearby orange groves of France, Italy and Spain.

The British eat more than four billion apples, nearly three billion oranges a year. It's a trade worth nursing.

BRAZIL, GETTING tired of the League of Nations, will probably withdraw. The United States probably will keep out of the League, and in view of recent elections in Illinois, Pennsylvania and Iowa, you may not hear much more about the World Court, since World Court Senators were defeated overwhelmingly in those important Republican States. Even Republican politicians learn slowly.

Marshal Foch, who knows war and proved it as commander of the Allied armies, says, "History proves that any disarmament, not voluntary, amounts to nothing." It is always the nation without defense that suffers, says Foch. This nation lacking a fighting air force may some day recall the French Marshal's warning, disagreeably.

KAY COPPER PREPARES TO ENTER PRODUCTION

Kay Copper Corporation is preparing to enter into production, according to a statement made today by James J. Godfrey, president. Reporting on the progress in the mine as indicated by telegrams received by Mr. Godfrey, during the first week of June more than 14 feet of ore assaying 14.9 per cent. copper across the full width of the face of the vein has been uncovered on the 1,500 foot levels. In a bulletin to stockholders Mr. Godfrey points out that more than six miles of underground workings have been completed and that ore now is being blocked out preparatory for entering into production. This is expected to occur within a few weeks.

WADSWORTH IN PLEA FOR U. S. WAR ALIENS

Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, has introduced in the Senate, and Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader, has filed in the House, a bill to allow the Shipping Board to furnish transportation at cost to all foreign-born American war veterans and their families who have been detained in Europe because of quota restrictions of the Immigration Act.

Through a bill sponsored by the Hearst newspapers and approved by Congress and President Coolidge, the quota restrictions were lifted to permit the veterans to return to the United States without delay.

By JAMES W. WADSWORTH, JR.
(United States Senator from New York.)

Written Expressly for Universal Service.

Washington, June 11.—Congress and President Coolidge already have indicated their desire to permit the re-entry to this country of those brave and loyal foreign born men who thought enough of America to join the army in 1917.

Previously, the workings of the immigration law had prevented several thousand such veterans from coming back to the United States.

I advocated such legislation and was very pleased to see it enacted into law.

The bill which I now have introduced will authorize the Shipping Board to furnish transportation at cost to these men and their families. It should be speedily enacted into law.

America is proud of the service of her foreign born. Thousands of the men affected by this legislation bear battle scars of service in France. Returning to their homelands, new immigration rules were put into effect here that barred their return to the States.

Their detention in Europe has resulted in dissipation of the funds of these soldiers.

Passage on United States liners at cost will make their re-entry possible.

I hope Congress will lose no time in granting our request.

Wall Street Gossip

COMMERCIAL failures in United States this week are compiled at 378 by R. G. Dun & Co. against 341 in five business days last week and 330 a year ago.

WALL Street hears plans for merger of Continental Tobacco Co. and Philip Morris & Co. are ready for approval of the directors, reported terms being the equivalent of one share of Philip Morris for each of Continental.

DID YOU EVER STOP—to consider that the spare room in your house is costing you money every day? Do you know that it can be easily rented? Do you realize that a year's rent at only $3 per week means $156.00; $4 a week means $208.00; $5 a week means $260.00? This is extra money that you can easily get. Just mail us your ad with full particulars about your room, phone number, location and rent desired, etc., and we will help you as we have already helped many others in securing tenants. Address Miss Black, Rooms for Rent Department, Boston Evening American and Advertiser, 92 Summer St., Classified Corner, Boston. Tel. Liberty 4000.
